FIGHT LOOMS ON PROPOSED SUPREME COURT CHANGE

DAT
OLE RIVER

Burns Fatal For Commissioner Swayze

Weary feet in soil-worn shoes, ankles weighted with clanking chains, hands that have grappled with an endless stack of heavy sandbags—all get a momentary rest as these members of a Tennessee convict chain gang catch their breath between shifts in the battle to save levees along the rising Mississippi river south of Memphis. Walking, working or resting, these "Sandbag Sams" must wear their iron anklets, the chain between them just permitting a normal stride, but no chance for escape.

DISEASE MAJOR FLOOD PROBLEM

Outbreak Of Dysentery Reported Among Reelfoot Levee Workers

(By Associated Press)
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Mississippi flood crest grated impotently tonight at miles of levees while the problem of disease grew more pressing along the flood-ravaged valley. Overcast skies and rising temperatures brought a threat of rain to hamper the unceasing activities of 120,000 laborers working night and day to keep the river in check. Sandbags and seepage kept them busy on all fronts. An outbreak of dysentery among the workers along the Reelfoot levee, meanwhile emphasized the disease factor anew. Warnings were issued that wells should be chlorinated and flood-killed animals burned or buried. Lieutenant-Colonel Eugene Reybold, United States district engineer here, expressed concern, meanwhile, over the slow recession of crest waters at Cairo, where an increased volume of water from the upper Mississippi brought the drop "almost to a standstill."

ENTOMBED MINER LOSES 43 POUNDS

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Robert Johnson waited tonight for past and food to restore some of the 43 pounds he lost during his eight day entombment in an abandoned Flemington mine. But as soon as he's strong enough to swing a pick, the 36-year-old rural mail carrier said he intended to return to his spare-time work in the mine, from which rescuers carried him yesterday. His face still covered with a nine-day-old beard and his arms and hands aching from slate cuts, Johnson told from his hospital cot how he had trapped himself by taking a short cut in the subterranean passages of the old mine. He entered the mine mouth, about a mile from Flemington, on the night of January 27, with two companions to clear clogged drains. They became separated. After that—Johnson said—"I thought I knew a short cut down—and I did under ordinary circumstances." He missed the short cut, his carbide light went out, then began the days of wandering in the dark. Rescuers found him behind a pile of slate. Today he had soup and water and rest.

'SAFE FROM FLOOD' ON THE AIR TODAY

"Why Monroe Is Safe From Flood" will be the subject of a radio address to be given at 1 o'clock today over station KMLB by Fred Williamson, managing editor of The Morning World and News-Star. The address will describe the protection afforded on the Arkansas river and the effect of the engineering work done along the Mississippi river to save this area from present or future flood menace.

RECOGNITION BIG ISSUE IN STRIKE

Proves Principal Obstacle To Settlement Of General Motors Tie-Up

DETROIT, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Governor Frank Murphy, in a formal statement tonight, confirmed reports that the chief obstacle in settlement of the automobile strike is whether or not General Motors corporation would recognize the United Automobile Workers of America as the exclusive bargaining agency for employees in 20 plants now on strike. The governor disclosed that "nearly all" of the other questions "have been ironed out and adjusted harmoniously" during the more than 30 hours spent in conference by opposing leaders during the past four days. "The real issue," he said, "is whether bargaining is to be exclusively with the U. A. W. A. or on the basis of representation."

JANUARY REVENUE COLLECTIONS GAIN

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Internal revenue tax collections in Louisiana for the month of January, totaled $1,541,574.68, an increase of $498,354.15 over the $1,043,220.53 for the same month in 1936. Rufus W. Fontenot, acting collector of internal revenue for the district, announced Saturday. The collections representing a 48 per cent increase over the 1936 period, reflected an increase in practically all types of taxes. Social security taxes, newest of the federal levies, brought in $58,680.41, and such taxes are expected to show an appreciable increase in February, he said. For the fiscal period beginning July 1, 1936, through January 31, this year, total collections were 26.5 per cent in advance over collections for the same preceding period, Fontenot said.

MONROE YOUTH TAKES OWN LIFE

No Reason Apparent For Self-Inflicted Action Of J. W. Chase

J. W. Chase, 21, cashier for a local drygoods company, walked into the advertising room of the store on the mezzanine floor Saturday morning at 8 o'clock, took a loaded automatic pistol from a table drawer and shot himself through the right temple, dying from the effects of the wound two hours later at St. Francis sanitarium. The story of the mother, Mrs. Mary Rodia, was supported by two of Leona's brothers, Edward and Joseph, Jr.

Another brother, George, and a sister, Mrs. Marian Reynolds, testified they didn't know Leona's age. The matter was complicated by the absence of any record of the girl's birth at DePaulville, where the mother said Leona was born, or at Watertown, the county seat. Judge Crandall F. Phillips adjourned.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS, ORLEANS MAN DIES

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Adam Serpas, 45, a laborer for the Federal barge line, who was found lying unconscious on the concrete walk leading to the Galvez street docks on the industrial canal Friday night, died in the Charity hospital today. Although police were of the opinion that Serpas died of a fall while he was intoxicated, Dr. Robert H. Potts, assistant coroner, said it was possible for the barge line employee to have received his injuries in an altercation. Pending a further investigation, Dr. Potts said he would withhold an official certificate of death. Serpas, Dr. Potts said, died from a punctured skull, a fractured nose and a split lip. The assistant coroner said the skull puncture was behind the right ear. Dr. Potts said if Serpas had died only as a result of a fall the puncture back of the ear would not have been received in addition to the facial injuries. Detectives Edward Scanlon and William Daniels, who investigated the case, reported that in their opinion Serpas died from injuries received in a fall.

MOTHER STICKS WITH LEONA IN FIGHT WITH LAW OVER MARRIAGE

Controversy Develops When Woman Says Daughter 18 Years Old

OFFICER CONTENDS AGE ORIGINALLY SET AT 12

New Story Supported By Testimony Of Two Brothers Of Girl

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A city court judge was called on today to decide whether Leona Roshia Backus, New York's "child bride," is a child or a woman.

The girl was brought into court as a 12-year-old, for a hearing on her marriage, but a controversy developed when her mother testified she was 18. If this age is correct, Leona was old enough to marry legally in New York state and the rape case against her husband, Stanley Backus, apparently could not be sustained.

Detective Samuel Roberts contended that Leona was not 18, but 12 as, he said, the mother had been quoted as saying earlier. Roberts asserted state police had informed him state health department records gave the girl's age as 12.

Another brother, George, and a sister, Mrs. Marian Reynolds, testified they didn't know Leona's age. The matter was complicated by the absence of any record of the girl's birth at DePaulville, where the mother said Leona was born, or at Watertown, the county seat. Judge Crandall F. Phillips adjourned.

5 Youthful Pals Held After Girl, 16, Killed

DONALDSONVILLE, La., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Contending that Genevieve Legnon, 16, was murdered by five youthful companions after a night club party, authorities continued tight-lipped tonight regarding the details of their investigation.

The Legnon girl, daughter of a New Iberia, La., carpenter, died January 23 from severe injuries, but no criminal investigation in connection with her death was disclosed until Sheriff Lester Gonzales arrested two other girls and three young men he said were with her when she was fatally hurt following a visit to a night club. The sheriff charged the youthful quintet with murder, and they were taken to Baton Rouge and placed in a stronger and more modern prison than the Ascension parish jail on order of Judge Henry L. Himel.

KIDNAP-KILLER

In safekeeping following lynching threats, Robert Kenyon, 29, is shown at a Kansas City jail after he was charged at Willow Springs, Mo., with the murder of Dr. J. C. B. Davis, 67. Kenyon declares a mysterious person called "The Nighthawk" killed the physician and that the slayer forced him (Kenyon) to mail a ransom note.

SCHOOL BURNS AT LAKE PROVIDENCE

$75,000 Loss Reported; Plans Immediately Made For Completion Of Term

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Fire of undetermined origin early this morning destroyed the Lake Providence public school building with an estimated loss of $75,000. Furnishings, library and equipment in the three-story brick building were destroyed, but school records were saved. The loss was partially insured.

The building, which was kept in an excellent state of repair, was erected in 1907.

Plans are being made for operating the school for the remainder of the term. Citizens are making available the churches and other public buildings as classrooms. The parish school board announced it will make immediate plans for the erection of a new building.

Dr. T. G. Biggs, mayor of Lake Providence, said the fire may have started from a cigarette left last night when a high school boxing match was held in the school's auditorium on the third floor.

CHILDREN'S PARADE MARDI GRAS FEATURE

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Grown-ups paused today in their Mardi Gras revelry to observe the "children's hour."

It was the kid's day throughout, their king, their party and their parade and they put on a spectacular show.

Between rows of cheering thousands the children drew 58 floats depicting a pageant of New Orleans commerce. Many of them made up their own hands, the floats made up in ingenuity whatever they might have lacked in size or sumptuousness.

Eleven-year-old Troy Svendsen was the youthful King Nor, monarch of childhood's realm. He was ably assisted in his regal duties by his queen, Valerie Marchesseau, 12. Following closely the pattern of their elders' parades the king drank a toast to his queen, in ginger ale, as thousands crowded, shoved and scrambled to obtain a vantage point for the ceremonies.

The children's parade was the highlight of the day's doings, which culminated tonight when several large carnival societies held balls renowned for their brilliance, splendor and smartness.

LEADERS OF BOTH SIDES PLAN BIG BATTLE TO GAIN PUBLIC OPINION

Roosevelt Urged To Carry Matter Before People In Radio Talks

ENDORSEMENT ANNOUNCED BY FEDERATION OF LABOR

Justices Themselves May Have Word To Say Before Congress Acts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The nation faced the prospect tonight of a terrific struggle between leaders eager to marshal public opinion for or against President Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the federal courts.

Mr. Roosevelt gave no sign that he would participate, but aides reported he had received a number of urgent requests to carry the fight to the people by radio.

Opposition leaders moved immediately to the attack. John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, declared in an address that the president's program would destroy every vestige of hope for "all impregnable bulwark" against legislative and executive assumptions of power.

A possibility arose that supreme court justices themselves might have a word to say, before the congress acts, about the president's plan to name six new men to the high tribunal and reform the federal judicial system all down the line.

Sensors Van Nuy, Republican, Indiana, and Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, said they would ask the senate judiciary committee to invite supreme court justices to testify before it. The committee will meet Monday, but the president's proposal can not come before it officially then because the plan has not yet been introduced in the senate.

Committee Chairman Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, after some previous hesitation, announced today he would introduce the president's bill Monday. Although administration leaders in congress predicted an eventual hard-won victory, a sharp division of opinion was evident among members of both house and senate committees which first must pass upon the plan.

Five members of the senate group have spoken for the reorganization, five have expressed outright opposition of criticism, and another—Van Nuy—discussed the program guardedly today.

While he agreed with many of the president's statements of objectives, Van Nuy said, "we may all differ as to the means of accomplishing those objectives."

Four other members of the group have declined comment, and three were not in the capital. The house judiciary committee set Tuesday for initial consideration of the president's message.

"We'll take their baby and look at it," said Chairman Sumners, Democrat, Texas. Expressions by some members of his committee foreshadowed a bitter battle.

Representative Miller, Democrat, Arkansas, said the proposals were "novel" and "no doubt will command much support," but expressed doubt as to their advisability.

"The congress has a well defined

FAIR OFFICIALS PLAN TO MEET

Will Convene in Monroe For Two-Day Session
Feb. 12-13

The next convention that will come to Monroe will be that of the Louisiana State Fair secretaries on February 12 and 13.

Headquarters will be at Hotel Virginia and plans are virtually complete for the holding of the meeting which will be attended by practically all secretaries of fairs held in Louisiana as well as other officials.

G. S. Vickers, secretary of the fair at Donaldsonville, will in all probability preside at the sessions.

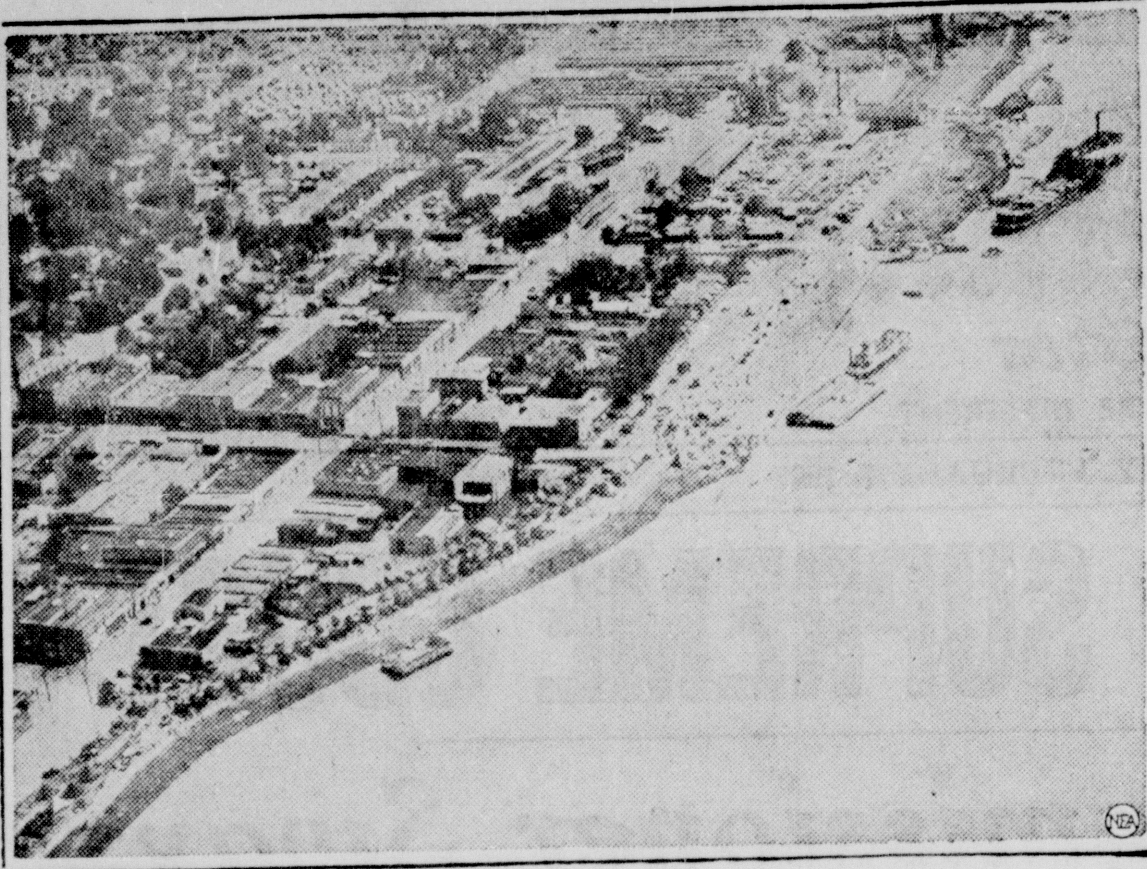

Guest of honor of the occasion will be Harry D. Wilson, state commissioner of agriculture and immigration, who will have an active part in the program.

The purpose of the meeting is to arrange for the holding of the various fairs in the state this fall and to consider details that may be essential in connection with the exhibitions.

LASALLE DONATES

JENA, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Mrs. B. T. Gallagher, LaSalle parish chairman of the American Red Cross, sent this week a check for $320 to the national headquarters of the Red Cross, representing the quota set for this parish to aid the flood victims in the Ohio valley section.

GREENVILLE IN MISSISSIPPI'S PATH

Located approximately 140 miles south of Memphis as the crow flies, but much farther by river route, Greenville, Miss., is another city in the path of the Mississippi as it courses toward the gulf. The river front and main business section of Greenville, a city of 14,000, is shown in this airview as the 157 flood reached its crest.

Donald D. Bode, experimental chemist, says cut-over land in the south can be made to yield a profit of $10 an acre each year by planting it with Australian pines.

CITY COURT TRIES 213 DURING MONTH

Two hundred and three persons were tried in the Monroe city court in January, fines totaling $606 were collected and fines amounting to $4,826 were charged to work on the streets, it was revealed yesterday in the monthly report of the police department.

Forty traffic accidents were reported to police during the month. Ten persons were reported injured in the accidents, two fatally.

Two automobiles were stolen and both were recovered outside the city. Property reported stolen in the city was valued at $2,941.40. A portion of the property valued at $1,039.50 was recovered.

Charges were preferred against arrested persons as follows: Aggravated assault, 1; burglary, 1; larceny over $50 in value, 1; larceny under $50 in value, 14; minor assault, 23; carrying concealed weapons, 4; sex offenses, 2; driving while intoxicated, 2; drunkenness, 65; disorderly conduct and vagrancy, 30; arrested for other authorities, 8; speeding, 11; reckless driving, 17.

Traffic law violators summoned to court, but not arrested were charged with the following offenses: Speeding, 18; reckless driving, 8; illegal parking, 31; improper or defective lights and brakes, 12; non-observance of lights and signs, 39; miscellaneous violations, 4.

CAMPING PERIODS FOR METHODISTS ARRANGED

Outing periods for Methodist young people were arranged at the recent meeting of the Christian education staff of the Monroe district held in Monroe recently.

Dates for the summer camps were selected and the following were elected as directors: Young people's camp at Ki-Ro-Li, Rev. D. W. Poole, of Mangham, director, dates July 5-9; the Christian Adventure camp, for intermediates, Rev. Jack H. Midyett, of Oak Ridge, director, dates, July 10-14.

Old Faces Made Young

A famous French beauty specialist recently astonished New York society by demonstrating how to correct wrinkles, scrawny neck, double chin, "crow's feet," shrunken, saggy cheeks and other marks of age by spending only 5 minutes a day in your own home by an easy method of facial rejuvenation that any one can do without the use of cosmetics.

The method is fully explained with photographs in a thrilling book sent free together with a Facial Analysis Chart also free to men or women by writing to Pauline Palmer, 1108-D Armour Blvd., Kansas City, Mo. Write before supply is gone.

19-24: Miss Elizabeth Langford, business manager.

Camp Oquoyah at Mount Sequoyah, Fayetteville, Ark., for 'teen age boys and girls, will be held from June 22 to July 16. Mrs. L. C. Poindexter, formerly of Monroe, will be camp director.

There are 40 church schools, 480 officers and teachers and 4,117 pupils in the district.

TECH REGISTRATION AT NEW HIGH MARK

RUSTON, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Setting a new high enrollment record for a winter semester at Louisiana Tech, 1,172 students had entered the college at the end of the first week of registration, according to announcements by the deans. Continuing through February 9, the registration period opened on Monday, February 1.

The enrollment for the present semester is an increase of 72 over the previous high record of exactly 1,100 for the corresponding session last year.

Included in the 1,172 enrollees are 570 girls and 602 boys.

In addition to the college students, there are 217 pupils enrolled in the teacher-training school at Tech, bringing the total campus population to 1,389.

For the fall semester recently ended, the college enrollment totaled 1,263, which was the largest number ever registered for a term at Tech.

Registration for the present semester took place in the new administration building, with the two lower floors being available for use. A few departments are conducting classes on these floors but the moving of other departments is being delayed pending the completion of the upper two floors of the building.

VETERINARIANS WILL ATTEND SHORT COURSE

Several Monroe veterinarians, headed by Dr. H. H. Bauer, will attend the sixth annual short course of the Louisiana Veterinary association, at Baton Rouge at Louisiana State university Tuesday and Wednesday.

An outstanding speaker will be Colonel Robert J. Foster, national veterinary society president, of Washington, D. C., who will discuss "Cattle Practice."

Other out-of-the-state speakers include Dr. L. A. Merrill, of Chicago; Dr. C. R. Donham, of Ohio State university, Columbus, O.; Dr. Richard Self, of Dallas, Tex., and others.

Special interest will be shown in the talk by Dr. Donham on "The Practical Control of Bang's Disease."

On Tuesday night the annual banquet will be held at 7:30 p.m., at which Dr. Fred C. Driver will be toastmaster.

10 PLEADERS GET COURT PENALTIES

Ten persons pleaded guilty to various charges in the district court here yesterday before Judge J. T. Shell and received sentences.

The heaviest sentence was imposed in the case of Clifton Allen and Reid Ester, negroes, who stole an automobile owned by Leon Johnson, of West Monroe, last Sunday night. Each of the negroes was given a sentence of from one to three years in the state penitentiary.

Allen and Ester abandoned the stolen car on the Natchitoches road after it crashed against a tree and was badly wrecked. They were arrested later in the week by the sheriff's department.

Frank Williamson and Herman Sims, both of West Monroe, and J. J. Knighton, of Caldwell parish, were each sentenced to a year in the state penitentiary for stealing a yearling owned by Sam Wagner, of ward nine, Cossatotia parish.

Other sentences were imposed as follows: Ben Koelle, disturbing the peace, $10 and court cost or 30 days in jail; Eddie Tribble, negro, cutting with intent to kill, six months on parish roads; James Barron, non-support, 60 days in jail; Herman Hill and Lewis Menfield, negroes, stealing scrap iron, each three months in jail.

One other defendant, James Roosevelt, negro, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering in the night. He was remanded to jail to await sentence.

DELHI HIGH SCHOOL ANNEX COMPLETED

DELHI, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—The new annex to the Delhi High school, a PWA project, has just been completed and was accepted by the school board last week. The annex provides more room for the faculty and student body and the congested condition is greatly improved.

A teachers' workroom has been added which gives the teachers a quiet place in which to work in the morning and in the afternoon after school is dismissed.

The school library has been removed from the high school auditorium, to a special room which now brings it up to the requirements of the state board of education. With the added books which the state has promised the local library, the faculty believes the unit will be second to none in Louisiana.

FAIR PRESIDENT NAMED

JENA, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Dallas H. Brooks, prominent Olla insurance man, has been elected again as president of the North Central Louisiana Fair, Inc., to serve for the year 1937. At a recent stockholders' meeting, Mr. Brooks was elected president, H. R. Reitzell, vice-president, and H. Vineyard, secretary-treasurer. The dates for the fair of this year have been set for October 5 through 9, and H. D. Blake and Mr. Brooks were elected as delegates to the state secretaries' convention in Monroe on February 12 and 13. The following are the directors elected by the stockholders: D. H. Brooks, W. D. Blake, J. V. Hinton, Floyd Albritton, H. R. Reitzell, J. E. Harris and Lee Warner.

REBELS LAUNCH MALAGA ATTACK

Seek To Cut Off One Of Last Remaining Outlets To Sea

By Charles Foltz

WITH THE FASCIST SOUTHERN ARMY MARCHING ON MALAGA, (Via Algeciras), Feb. 6.—(AP)—In the nine fierce stabs by land, sea, and air, Spain's insurgent Generalissimo, Francisco Franco, began today a week-end assault on the refugee-crowded city of Malaga.

The objective of this sweeping drive was to cut off and crush one of the last remaining sea outlets of the Spanish Socialist government. The attackers already claimed to have surrounded Malaga.

Large units of cavalry formed advancing fingers of Franco's full-force push, feeling the way over the rolling terrain for motorized columns. The mounted troops had a decided superiority over the modern "gasoline gauchos" in the hills and valleys of the Malaga region.

Ahead of infantry legions, the armored trucks and light tanks rumbled down the valleys and highways toward the Mediterranean city once boastful of its standing as a resort.

Crack cavalrymen scoured the hills, woods and mountain trails, cleaning out opposition which sought to stem the tide of attack with guerilla warfare.

The oncoming Fascists clashed with more organized resistance near Marbella, about 30 miles to the southwest of the port city. Insurgent warships, lying off the disputed territory, blasted at the Socialist lines.

Fascist bombing planes tried to smash Socialist lines. The roar of battle echoed over the once-peaceful countryside, driving non-combatants into Malaga. The city's normal population of 200,000 was more than doubled.

Pursuit ships, escorting insurgent bombers on their forays against the Malaga region, engaged Socialist planes from the government airbase southwest of Malaga.

Only a "bottleneck" of unoccupied territory south of Granada to the sea-coast at Motril was left for the escape of non-combatants, and this area was dominated by troops in mountain passes near Orgiva, the insurgent officers said.

The entire strip of "escape territory" is less than 10 miles wide, in full range of insurgent artillery on land and marine guns at sea.

"Malaga is surrounded" was the claim at the Fascist Algeciras field headquarters. Strategists declared Franco's columns—the southern forces under the Franco subordinate, General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano—had occupied positions in a semi-circle around the city, while Fascist warships covered the waterfront.

The field headquarters outlined the offensive thus: Mountains commanding the Cadiz-Malaga coastal highway near Marbella were being cleaned out by a column headed by the Duke of Seville.

Two columns converged in the Ronda sector, 43 miles west of Malaga, and crushed government resistance.

Three columns operating from Antequera, 22 miles north of Valle de Abadalgia, Villanueva de la Concepcion and Villanueva de Cauche, lying roughly between Antequera and Malaga. This move established a new front about 10 miles closer to Malaga.

Other troops were pushing across the 3,000-foot plateau of the Sierra Gordo mountains within nine miles of Colmenar. There are 10 miles of territory between Colmenar and Malaga, to the southwest.

Still another column had approached the Guaro river valley near Velez-Malaga, 16 miles east of Malaga.

NEW ORLEANS CALM BEHIND ITS LEVEES

Though lying well below the anticipated flood crest of the Mississippi, New Orleans viewed the approaching floodwaters with no apprehension, confident the city's elaborate levee, drainage and pumping systems and the Bonnet Carré spillway, 30 miles upstream, would save the city from inundation. In this airview of New Orleans, looking southeast down famous Canal street, the city's business district is seen near the river's edge. Only a short distance back of the photographer, lay Lake Pontchartrain, emptying into the gulf. But the Mississippi, meandering off to the left of the photo, straggles more than 100 miles across the delta before emptying into the gulf.

GROWERS PLAN TO RAISE TOMATOES

Cultural Methods Are Discussed At Meeting In West Monroe

A meeting of a group who plan to raise and market cooperatively 100 or more acres of tomatoes was held in the city hall of West Monroe, Saturday at 2 p. m.

More than 40 farmers and truck growers were present who are interested in the project, most of whom were those who had already signed up acreage.

E. R. Strahan, parish farm agent, attended and stated that he would cooperate in every possible manner toward making a success of the plan which requires that a total of 100 or more acres must be raised to make a success of the cooperative project of marketing the crop.

Methods of building cold frames were discussed by T. E. White, representing a local seed company, and he also explained that they must face north and south. Other details were given as to how to make a successful start of the project.

At a later meeting there will be officers elected and a name chosen for the group. It is planned to hold these educational meetings every two weeks to keep the group informed as to best cultural methods.

Mr. White stated Saturday at the close of the meeting that still more are entering the group and that the indications are that it will prove a complete success.

It is expected to have buyers come to Ouachita parish and purchase the crop in the field. The time for ripening will be about June 1.

MOREHOUSE RAISES BIG SUM FOR FLOOD RELIEF

BASTROP, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Morehouse parish citizens' donations to the American Red Cross amounted to $1,402 yesterday. At that time, J. R. Ludlum, chairman of the flood relief drive, stated that he had received returns from nearly every ward in the parish.

Mr. Ludlum said that he was well pleased with the drive, in which the residents of this parish responded so generously, but declared that the need still exists in the flooded areas and will continue to exist for some time.

This parish's original quota was fixed at $300. Since that time Chairman Cary T. Grayson of the Red Cross has asked that the limit be "the maximum generosity of the American people." Mr. Ludlum is of the opinion that the contributions in Morehouse will exceed the $1,500 mark.

BUILDING CLUBHOUSE

TULLOS, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—A clubhouse is being erected across the highway from the Placid Oil company office for the use of the employees of the firm. It will be called the Placid Recreation club. The building, which will be 28 by 50 feet, will house a library 14 by 50 feet. The remaining space in the building will be used for pool tables, domino tables and other recreational devices. The company will furnish all books and magazines pertaining to oil for the library, and members of the club will donate books from their private libraries. According to an announcement by T. M. Rabb, superintendent, the club will be operated as a non-profit organization, but a small membership fee will be charged until the building and all equipment are paid for. A large sum was donated by H. L. Hunt, Tyler, Tex., president of the Placid Oil company. The building will be completed and ready for use by the first of March.

'Delly' Swayze, Hero

"Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends."

No better epitaph can be written than that for Commissioner R. D. Swayze, who gave his life in a heroic effort to save his daughter and his young granddaughter who he believed were trapped in the rooms of their burning home early Friday morning. The great tragedy of the sacrifice lies in the fact that events proved it was not needed. Those he sought to save were already safe.

The circumstance does not detract from, but emphasizes, the quality of heroism which led the commissioner to brave the most terrifying form of death in his determination to save the loved ones he had every reason to believe were behind that living wall of flame. The shock of his death is tempered by its heroic circumstances.

His sacrifice was characteristic of the man. No one who knew him could doubt his courage and his willingness to endure the utmost of personal suffering for those whom he loved. With a passionate devotion he loved the city that had been his home for nearly 47 years. He gave himself unstintingly to further the interests of his community as he understood and recognized them. In times of emergency, in flood, drouth or depression, he was at the service of his fellows.

His convictions were his own, and he allowed no influence to swerve him when he was convinced that his course was right. He came up out of a hard and exacting school as a pilot and packet master of the days when steamboating was one of the most important elements in the life of the south. His experience gave him a keen knowledge of human nature. He was a warm friend to those who proved worthy of his friendship and an uncompromising foe to the things which did not harmonize with his principles of right.

He was a faithful and energetic public servant, and devoted himself to making the parks and streets of the city, over which he had jurisdiction as a member of the city commission, contribute to the well being of the community at large. At the time of his death he was engaged in furthering plans for the beautification of the city.

He loved children and flowers—a quality that gave a key to his character and the impulse which led him to face almost certain death in an endeavor to save others from death.

The memory of "Delly" Swayze must remain amongst the people of his home community as one that offers an inspiration to the highest form of self-sacrifice in the interest of others. His heroism, enshrined in the hearts of his fellow citizens, will be his greatest monument.

HAPPINESS

It is the habit of man's nature to work in the expectation of reward, and it is a law that every deed brings some reward in its train. This reward, to be sure, is not always the one sought; but since no thought or act can be wholly isolated, it brings consequences which repay it for good or ill.

The final reward sought by all men is happiness. This aim is obscured and confused too often because men set up a lesser object which they believe to be the last key to the happiness they seek. This may be the reward of financial success, or fame, or freedom from responsibility or obligation, but these are no more than formulas out of which they hope to derive happiness.

He who has the wit to place happiness somewhere within his reach is most likely to attain it. Fortunately, it is never far away from any human life, unless the individual chooses a long and devious path to it. It is the universal reward to mankind and given according to comprehensible laws.

BANISHING A 'POORHOUSE'

When Herbert Hoover visited the Virgin islands during his term as president, he was appalled by the desolate economic situation he found there. He remarked that these islands constituted "an effective poorhouse," and there was no reason to quarrel with his judgment.

Happily, a better day at last seems to be dawning. Governor Lawrence W. Cramer, reviewing the expenditure of federal funds to rehabilitate the islanders, declares that an end of this spending is at last in sight, and predicts that the islands may easily be made self-supporting.

Rum and sugar seem to be doing the trick. Federal money financed a start in their production—or rather a revival, for the Virgin islands once waxed rich on those commodities, generations ago. If the program is wisely continued for a little longer, Governor Cramer reports, the Virgin islands will have a sound economy which will enable them to stand on their own feet.

A life of the late Sir Basil Zaharoff has come from the press, and it is no more of a success story than that of Ivan the Terrible.

All things come to him who waits, including the rich widow of the fellow who said: "Time is money."

The chief trouble with the world is that nations and men can stoop to dishonor without losing caste.

Rhyme And Reason

By ANNE CAMPBELL
MY MOTHER

My mother's always straightening
My dresser drawers and everything.
How quickly order comes when she
Applies her sweet efficiency.
So quietly she moves about
To clear my rumpled wardrobe out,
I scarcely know she has been there
Until my room is fresh and fair.

My mother, too, can smooth and heal
The little troubles that I feel.
Her love untangles and lays straight
The twisted promises of fate.
Her hands are magic hands that hold
The very purest of life's gold.
They touch my days and make them whole,
And straighten out my cluttered soul.

Don't Judge Tennessee

By BRUCE CATTON

The wondering attention of the nation again centers upon Tennessee. The objects of interest this time are a raw-boned 22-year-old mountain lad and his 9-year-old, golden-haired child bride.

Though the girl's parents and her brawny husband can see nothing strange about the romance, theirs being a region in which girls marry young, ministers and social workers from afar are castigating it as a crime against society, and blaming the state for permitting such alliances.

Before the whole affair dies down, the nation may receive another unfortunate impression of the state of Tennessee. Another—because the notorious "monkey trial" also gave it something of a black eye.

Most people still remember the circumstances of that affair. In July, 1925, a test case was to be fought at Dayton, Tenn., over a state measure that, in effect, prohibited the teaching of evolution in Tennessee schools.

When the outside world learned about it, reporters and cameramen descended upon Dayton, William Jennings Bryan and Clarence Darrow were on hand to lend their respective talents to the opposing sides of the debate, and the hippodrome was on.

The whole fiasco contributed very materially to the entertainment of the nations but when it was over, Tennessee had lost caste among her sister states. The impression had been created that a state which would shield its young from a very important branch of science must, to put it kindly, be behind the times.

Now, it would be unfair if the people of other states were to draw such an estimate of Tennessee simply because she was unfortunate enough to have two quirkers in her laws magnified by incidents for the nation to see.

Far from being a "horse-and-buggy" state, Tennessee is rapidly becoming one of the most progressive in the union. It is, for instance, the laboratory in which the government's TVA project is taking shape, a program that is fashioning a future American design for living. Tennesseans are cooperating heartily in the great plan.

As other evidence that the state is at least keeping abreast of the times are the new highways that unite its formerly isolated population; its bustling, enterprising cities of Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Knoxville; and its lure for new industries.

And, though Tennessee has failed to set in its code a minimum age for brides, school attendance is compulsory throughout the state, and employment of children under 16 in workshops, factories or mines is illegal.

Truly, it would seem as absurd to judge Tennessee by such scattered incidents as the child marriage and "monkey trial" as it would be to assume that boxing is rampant in Pennsylvania, or that the average Kentuckian goes to the polls both to cast his ballot and riddle a few political adversaries.

A BOOK REVIEW

HERE'S BEAUTY BIBLE FOR BUSY WOMAN

Few women take anything as seriously as their looks. In "This Way to Beauty," by Helena Rubinstein, one of the world's foremost beauticians takes it upon herself to compile a sort of beauty bible for the busy woman.

Unlike most volumes of this sort, "This Way to Beauty" is a sensible, practical guide to better grooming which can be studied, however briefly, with profit. The book is packed with scientifically exact information, charts and diagrams. Diets, exercises, make-up, color harmony and relaxation are among the comprehensive beauty problems discussed.

Madame Rubinstein is fully aware of the fact that the modern girl or woman has but little time to spend pondering over the discrepancies of her face and figure.

She also realizes that even the most emancipated of the weaker sex still have a secret yen to be a combination of Madame Recamier and the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi.

She therefore outlines a beauty program which takes time and concentration, but not too much of either, and one which she guarantees will give results.

There is remarkable lack of the conventional hokey in this compact little volume. Madame Rubinstein takes her work seriously and expects you to do the same, but, in so doing, she takes neither your sense of humor nor feeling for the eternal fitness of things. She also has the gift of telling you off, pulchritudinally speaking, without making you angry.

All these factors combine to make an amusing and exceedingly helpful little book.

SO THEY SAY

The right-minded people in Wall Street don't want to see the public rushing into securities without first finding out what they're buying.—Charles Gay, president, New York stock exchange.

The most marvelous expression of democratic life in America today is a university supported by the people.—Dr. Walter A. Jessup, president, Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Learning.

There are fashions in politics, too . . . but where an unsatisfactory article of clothing can be thrown away in the middle of the season, an unsatisfactory administration must be endured for four years.—Mrs. Edna Woolman Chase, Chicago fashion authority.

The trouble with education is that it can be sold, but it cannot be bought. No matter how much is paid, no matter how much time, effort, and care are contributed by others, no one can become really educated without his own efforts.—Dr. Alan Valentine, president, University of Rochester.

BARBS

The newsreel shot showing ruin of a city turned out to have been a Madrid scene, and not the aftermath of an American convention.

Noting that auto shows are featuring cars cut in two, a friend, who didn't see the other driver coming, is interested in selling his for display.

Madrid is another place where it is risky to lean out the window and shout "Fire," as someone might.

The question with American women at England's coronation next spring will be whether they should arrive in streamlined trains.

A Michigan woman who brought some fruit cakes to a doctor to have them X-rayed might have been trying to locate her husband's teeth.

TODAY'S BIBLE THOUGHT

For they prophesy falsely unto you in my name: I have not sent them, saith the Lord.—Jeremiah 29:9.

Falsehood, like poison, will generally be rejected when administered alone; but when blended with wholesome ingredients, may be swallowed unperceived.—Whately.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON
THE FALL OF LONDON WHARF—London Tower wharf, which was built by King Henry III in 1240, collapsed three times on three successive St. George's nights, 1240, 1241 and 1242. The collapse was probably due to the action of high spring tides. At the time, however, the ghost of the martyred Thomas A. Becket was held responsible. Becket was appeased by having one of the adjoining towers named the St. Thomas' tower, and thereafter the wharf has endured for nearly 700 years to the present day.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Diary: A bid from Adela Rogers St. John for us to dine with her and her husband and Helmut and Miss Vidor. And a chirpy note from James Forbes, who wrote a favorite play, "The Chorus Lady." So breakfasting on sausage and cinnamon spiced apple rings and stretched before a crackling fire.
Sorting desk papers, I came upon letters from John Ringling, Arthur Somers Roche and Karl Kitchen, all no longer of this vale of tears. And so with my lady to the Algonquin to Bertha and Frank Case's tea for Constance Collier and much hanky-panky and fol-de-rol.
Dinner at El Morocco with Dudley Field Malone, in a daisy dower, and he off to some plucky affair. Then home and a letter from Rosita Royce who told of her trained doves, how they sulk, act coy when flattered and become temperamental after a bath. To bed thrilling to essays by Addison. What a penman!
There is deserved wonder about those impudent dance dens, slotted cheek by jowl alongside magnificent Broadway amusement temples. Their entrance is a narrow hallway, dim lit, over which a seedy doorman, indifferent to trade, stands adder-eyed guard. There are enticing cabinet pictures of diaphanously clad "dancing hostesses" one never sees inside and suggestive placards about the good time to be had by all. The truth is many are yokel traps, sinister clipe points that take the Good Time Charlie for his roll. They are in cahoots with night-hawk taxi-drivers, who collect their percentage of the gyp.
George McManus is dean of the comic strip men—having dished up his Jiggs and Maggie hilarities without break for 26 years. And is one of the few who stuck to his original formula. Most limners who started with him have passed from the picture or have joined the serial cycle—the next episode tomorrow metier. McManus also does all the pen lines of his creations. There are some who merely make the pencil sketches and have assistants to finish the chore and do the lettering in the balloons. McManus is on the off-edge of 50, but as lively and interested in life as the college freshman. One of the fashion plates of his guild.
Memory: The old time theater program that listed its cast of characters thus: "Albert—in love with Myrtle."
Too, there was one familiar set for the patrons of the villain-still-pursued-his-melodrama that always enchanted this gallery. That was a railroad station eating room, with offstage puffing and ding-donging to denote arrival and departure of trains. Now and then the conductor with lantern would hurry through. And back of the counter the bosomy Sophie Tucker serving woman, with ennu in her face, talk and manners. We knew the innocent post learner reading a newspaper was a Sherlock, watching, waiting. The scene would be programmed: "Paddington Station—shortly after midnight."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON
THE FALL OF LONDON WHARF—London Tower wharf, which was built by King Henry III in 1240, collapsed three times on three successive St. George's nights, 1240, 1241 and 1242. The collapse was probably due to the action of high spring tides. At the time, however, the ghost of the martyred Thomas A. Becket was held responsible. Becket was appeased by having one of the adjoining towers named the St. Thomas' tower, and thereafter the wharf has endured for nearly 700 years to the present day.

Family Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
(Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine)

The spinal cord and the brain are surrounded with envelopes of tissue known as meninges. When these become infected or inflamed, due usually to invasion by various types of germs, the afflicted person develops meningitis, which means an inflammation of the meninges.

There are various types of meningitis, depending on the germ responsible. If it happens to be the germ of tuberculosis, the condition is tuberculous meningitis. The pneumonia germ causes pneumococcus meningitis, and streptococci brings on streptococcal meningitis. Each of these conditions must be treated according to the nature of the infection.

The diagnosis usually is made by puncturing the spinal cord with a needle developed particularly for this purpose, and withdrawing some of the fluid for examination. In this fluid, the germs which cause the infection are found.

Certain forms of meningitis are almost invariably fatal. This applies particularly to the tuberculous and pneumococcus types.

The type of meningitis which is most common, however, is that due to a special germ known as meningococcus. It is this germ that most frequently affects the envelopes of the spinal cord. This is the organism sought when meningitis occurs in epidemic form. The condition sometimes is called cerebro-spinal fever.

Since it was first described, meningitis has gradually appeared all over the world and is probably affecting more people steadily.

During the World War all armies were attacked to some extent by this condition.

New York had a severe epidemic in 1904-05 in which there were 2,755 cases, with 2,026 deaths. The most recent severe outbreak in the United States occurred between 1928 and 1930.

It is well established that germs which cause meningitis enter the human body through the nose and throat. They then pass either by way of the blood, or directly by way of the nose, to the tissues which envelop the brain and the spinal cord. The germ, of course, is passed from one person to another as are other germs, and occasionally by indirect contact with articles soiled by discharges from the nose and mouth of those who are sick.

Contamination of fingernails, dishes, pipes, handkerchiefs, toys, and other objects by persons who have the meningococcus in their noses and throats, may lead to indirect transmission.

The germs may be carried in the nose at three from two to 10 days before the person comes down with the disease. During this time, he may spread the disease to others although apparently not sick himself.

The symptoms of this disease are, of course, related to the manner in which it infects the body. During the period of invasion there are the usual sore throat, dullness, fever, chills, rapid pulse and general soreness that are associated with most infectious diseases. Quite frequently a rash of red spots the size of a pin-point or larger will appear over the body.

In the stage when the infection has spread to the nervous system, patients have severe pain and burning headache, vomiting and even delirium and convulsions.

Stealing horses' tails is a common crime in Temuco, Chile. Horsehair brings a high price there.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—The immediate future of the federal relief program is always blurred.

True to old-time habits, the Roosevelt administration again plunges into the next few months of relief with its fingers crossed, its face grim and an ear cocked for the first sound of rioting or other protests at proposed drastic curtailment of WPA.

And as if also from habit, Mother Nature—after heretofore contenting herself with sending drouths—has now again added further to the complexities and foggiest of the program with a great, disastrous flood, which scrambles all the previous blue-prints, reliable or otherwise.

The $790,000,000 deficiency bill for relief, passed by the house and headed through the senate, provides $650,000,000 to carry WPA to the end of June. Theoretically, and on the word of Administrator Harry Hopkins, the plan is to cut the present WPA army of 2,200,000 persons down to 1,600,000 by June, a reduction of 600,000 heads of families and single persons.

More WPA-ers

Actually there will be no such reduction, and it is most unlikely that it would have been achieved even if there had been no flood. With 1,000,000 persons made homeless by the catastrophe, don't be surprised if there are more men and women on the WPA rolls in June than there are right now.

In addressing a house subcommittee, Hopkins said it would be difficult to hold the WPA figures down to those he outlined. He began with the assumption that the WPA roll would not increase in January and February—"an assumption that cannot readily be made, because in every other year the relief rolls have jumped in the winter."

He referred to the plan for reduction of 600,000 not as a program, but as "our proposal" and "our proposition," explaining it was "based on continued recovery and assumes a good agricultural year, that will make drouth expenditures unnecessary." Providing also for a monthly reduction in cost per man, with an "assumption" that "we will get more money out of sponsors."

Ambitious Program

Obviously there were plenty of assumptions—and loopholes—in Hopkins' statement which didn't appear in public reports.

What Hopkins really was saying was that he would try to carry out ideas of the president—ideas pressed upon Roosevelt by Secretary Morgenthau, the group which would balance the budget at all costs except that of new taxation, and southern conservative Democrats led by Chairman Buchanan and Glass of the house and senate appropriations committees.

If possible, Hopkins would try to get WPA cost down to $145,000,000 for March with a cut of 50,000; to $134,500,000 for April by cutting 150,000 more; and finally to $103,000,000 for June after lopping off 200,000 by May and 200,000 more by June.

Roosevelt wanted to get WPA expenses down to $100,000,000 a month or less for the fiscal year 1937-38. Other WPA experts believed this program could not be achieved, that the need of WPA jobs was too great, that effective protests would be made, that there would be little reduction, and that more money would be found "somehow."

They were willing to back up this belief with statistics as to need, indicating that 600,000 families couldn't be tossed off WPA without great suffering and more rioting than the administration would care to contemplate.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

WORKERS' CHAMPION

LITTLE had been done, by the first of the 20th century, to ease the working conditions of factory employees. Then a champion arose in Spain in the person of Gumerindo de Azcarate, professor of comparative law at the University of Madrid.

After 15 years of his efforts, Spain in 1903 founded the Institute for Social Reform, of which Azcarate soon became president. He held this office until his death in 1917, fostering legislation on behalf of working women and children, and getting better working conditions for all. He favored councils for industrial conciliation, succeeded in improving housing for the poor, and instituted a system of factory inspection.

So highly admired was he that he was sought by both employers and employees as arbitrator in industrial disputes. He died at the age of 77. The stamp shows here, picturing Azcarate, was issued by Spain in 1935.

after midnight and at 2:30 o'clock Saturday morning he succumbed. Attending physicians described the cause of his death as shock induced by first and second degree burns which covered fully one-third of his body. Face, arms, hands and feet were severely scorched by the flames.

The death of Commissioner Swayze came as a distinct shock to the community when the news was received. He had been a member of the city commission council for nearly six years. He was first elected to the post of commissioner of streets and parks in 1931, and was re-elected to the office a year ago. His term would have expired until June, 1939.

Commissioner Swayze was 53 years old. He was born in Wilkerson county, Miss., in 1884. In 1880 he came to Monroe in company with his parents, the late Louis H. Swayze and Courtney Ann Swayze. He had been a resident of Monroe ever since.

His early education was obtained in the Monroe schools, following which he entered upon a river steamboating career with his brothers, L. H. Swayze and the late S. E. Swayze, who was fatally injured in a river boat accident at the old traffic bridge in 1904.

R. D. Swayze started his river craft activities as a "cub" pilot on tugboats and towboats in the Ouachita river and its tributaries. Graduating from this service, he acquired a second class license as pilot on a packet steamer, going on from that phase to first-class pilot and then to master. As master he operated some of the largest boats on the Ouachita, including the famous "Bob Blanks," "Imperial," "City of Monroe" and other celebrated craft, and became known as one of the most accomplished pilots in the service. Later he extended his experience to the Mississippi and operated boats between New Orleans and Vicksburg.

After retiring from the river, Mr. Swayze entered the cattle and meat business with his brothers, L. H. A. and M. D. Swayze, a connection he maintained until he entered the city hall as commissioner of streets and parks. He has always been active in civic movements for the benefit of the city and during his term as a public official has devoted much of his attention to a program for city beautification.

He was a member of the First Methodist church and of Graham Surghor Lodge F. and A. M.

He is survived by his widow and one son, Gus Swayze, besides twin daughters, Miss Mattie Swayze and Mrs. Mabel Swift. One granddaughter also survives, besides three brothers, L. H. Swayze, A. A. Swayze, and M. D. Swayze, and one sister, Mrs. C. E. Scott, Gilbert.

the hearing for a week to await the arrival of the birth record alleged to exist at Albany.

If her age is 12, her marriage is illegal under New York's 14-year limit. But if she is 18, her marriage is legal and a wife cannot be compelled to testify against her husband.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The child bride is no stranger to America, the census bureau records showed today, even though a nine-year-old "Mrs." may be.

There are an estimated 5,000 or more child brides under the age of 15, the records show. Include those who are 15 and the total reaches 20,000.

And the number, the records indicate, has been increasing for the past 40 years.

In 1890, 1,411 brides of under 15 were recorded, not including 29 widows and divorcees. In twenty years their number was up to 3,482. By 1930, the figure was 4,506. At the rate of increase shown, today's figure would be more than 5,000.

Governor figures offer no breakdown below 15 years of age; therefore they hold no indication whether 9-year-old Eunice Winstead, who married 22-year-old Charlie Johns in Tennessee, has sister brides as youthful in other parts of the country.

But there undoubtedly are a number of child brides of 12, the age at which Leona Elizabeth Roshia married Stanley Backus in Watertown, N. Y.

Generally nothing is heard of these early marriages until some unusual development projects them into the news. Only the census taker knows of all of the "baby brides" and he never tells who they are. He does tell where they are, however.

Of the 4,506 wives under 15 years of age in 1930 (including 167 widows and 96 divorcees) he found 1,240 in the east south central states of Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee. The south Atlantic territory—Delaware—

AGENT EXPLAINS FARM PROGRAM

Plans For Agricultural Conservation For 1937 Outlined By Strahan

Before a large assembly of farmers yesterday morning in the civil district courtroom at the courthouse here, E. R. Strahan, Ouachita parish agricultural agent, outlined the agricultural conservation program for 1937.

A better balanced system of farming, which will be more profitable to the farmer and safer for the nation, is the aim of the 1937 AAA conservation program, Mr. Strahan said.

He explained that farmers will receive federal checks for diverting up to 35 per cent of the cotton base acreage to soil conserving crops, and for soil building practices. "There are also payments offered for diverting other special crops and general depleting crops to soil conserving crops," the agent told his audience.

"The cotton payment will be five cents per pound on the normal production of the acreage diverted not in excess of 35 per cent of the base cotton acreage for the farm," Mr. Strahan continued. "However, on farms with a base of 2 acres or less the entire base may be diverted for payment. On farms with a base of 2 to 5.7 acres as much as 2 acres may be diverted for payment. This is essentially the same plan as that of 1936."

Regarding the conservation of the soil, Mr. Strahan said "the AAA seeks more widespread use of farming practices which restore and maintain productivity, and which retard wind and

CAR TAKEN BY MISTAKE LEADS TO REPORTS OF 2 STOLEN AUTOMOBILES

Because an automobile driver entered the car of another person by mistake and drove away in the machine downtown here Thursday night, police received complaints that two automobiles had been stolen. One of the cars reported stolen was the one taken by mistake and the other was the car which was left downtown when the driver took the wrong car.

Mrs. J. N. Knowles, 314 Arkansas avenue, police said, stepped out of the Primos restaurant Thursday night and drove away in a 1931 model Packard sedan parked near the restaurant. This car is owned by G. K. Primos, owner of the restaurant, Mrs. Knowles, whose husband is an automobile dealer, left at the curb the 1931 Chevrolet automobile she had been driving before she entered the restaurant. Accustomed to driving different cars, she gave no thought to the fact that she was not driving a Chevrolet.

A short while later Primos told police his Packard had been stolen, and the next morning a report from the Knowles home to police said that an automobile thief had taken the Chevrolet from the Knowles home and left a 1931 model Packard there.

The mixup was explained when police found the reported stolen Chevrolet opposite the Primos restaurant, where Mrs. Knowles had parked it the night before.

Police took the Packard ignition switch key, inserted it in the Chevrolet to ignition switch, and drove the Chevrolet to the Knowles home. The fact that both keys would turn the switches of both cars was considered an extremely rare coincidence.

RIOTING BREAKS OUT AT ORLEANS

Clashes Follow Resumption Of Intercoastal Shipping Operations

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—(P)—Rioting broke out this afternoon as intercoastal shipping operations were resumed in the port after a lapse of three months during the maritime strike.

Between 200 and 300 members of the two "old" longshoremen's unions, which prior to the strike had been employed by the intercoastal lines, armed with bricks and other missiles, stormed the Luckenbach Gulf Steamship company was discharging the S. S. Florence Luckenbach with members of the International Longshoremen's association.

Four police officers attempted to repel the advance of the "old" longshore union members who had been picketing the wharf earlier in the day, but were compelled to place a riot call and two patrol wagons from the third precinct police station rushed to the scene with police reinforcements.

The picketing crowd was dispersed and 19 men, including three negroes were arrested and taken to the third precinct station in the patrol wagons. At the station they were booked on charges of vagrancy and assault with bricks.

Captain Henry Clark, police officer in charge of riverfront detail, arrived on the scene shortly after the riot, having received a police radio flash on it while cruising in a police car. He said all pickets had been dispersed. Patrolman John Whitmore, one of the four police on detail at the dock, was scratched on one leg by a brick, but no other injuries were reported. Members of the I. L. A. continued discharging the ship.

The Florence Luckenbach was the first of the ships of the Luckenbach and Gulf Pacific lines, the two intercoastal companies, to begin discharging the cargoes which they brought from the Pacific coast about three months ago, but had been unable to unload as a result of the Pacific coast maritime strike and sympathetic action on the part of the seamen on their vessels.

The S. S. Point Arena of the Gulf Pacific line was unable to begin discharging her cargo as scheduled Saturday as seamen declined to supply steam for the winches if members of the present International Longshoremen's association instead of the "old" I. L. A. locals No. 1225 and 231 were employed.

Mildred Gale, grandmother of George Washington, is buried in the Church of Saint Nicholas at Whitehaven, England.

TWO TYPHOID PATIENTS SHOWING IMPROVEMENT

Marked improvement has been shown during the past several days in the condition of C. S. "Kippy" Moore, Jr., of Monroe, who has been critically ill with typhoid fever at the St. Francis sanitarium, it was learned yesterday afternoon from his physician.

Continued improvement also has been shown in the condition of Mrs. O. W. Johnson of Monroe, who also is receiving treatment for typhoid fever at the sanitarium. Her condition has not been as serious as that of young Moore. She is expected to be taken to her home early this week.

OTHER BODIES IN DEBRIS HUNTED

Seven Taken From Ruins Of Explosion-Fire Wrecked Building

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 6.—(P)—Workers continued tonight their search of debris in an explosion-fire wrecked building after removing the bodies of seven victims. It was feared others lost their lives in the tragedy.

Tentative identification of the fourth victim was made tonight, but names of three others remained unknown. The dead:

Mrs. Hattie Jackson, 27.
Mohler G. Breckinridge, 42.
Robert Hawkins, manager of the grocery store which occupied part of the destroyed building.
Another body tentatively identified as that of Joseph Bacon, an employee of the grocery store.
Child, about 15, unidentified.
Woman and man, unidentified.
Mrs. Jackson was believed killed when she was struck by a falling wall as she ran past the crumbling building.

It was planned to sift the ashes removed from the scene in the belief that other victims were cremated in the blaze. There were several reports of women and children missing but these could not be traced. In addition to those living on the second and third floors, a number of flood refugees were being cared for, and there was no definite check on their names or number.

A tragic aftermath of the fire came to light today. A fireman, Jake Hicks, returned home after fighting the blaze until late last night to learn that his daughter, Mrs. Jeanette Adams, and her 6-year-old son, William, probably were in the flaming wreckage as he worked there.

They left home a few minutes before the blast occurred, saying they were going to the grocery store which was caught in the blast. They did not return.

Dr. Hugh R. Leavell, director of health, announced that water from the city's mains would be safe without boiling, beginning Monday.

Earlier, Dr. A. I. McCormack, state health commissioner, had announced that the quarantine against traffic entering Louisville would be lifted Monday morning. The quarantine will remain in effect in a small east end negro section, however, Dr. McCormack said.

The body of a negro identified as Henry Slaughter, 50, watchman at the Louisville Varnish company, was found today in the charred ruins of the plant, destroyed in the first fire here during the height of the flood.

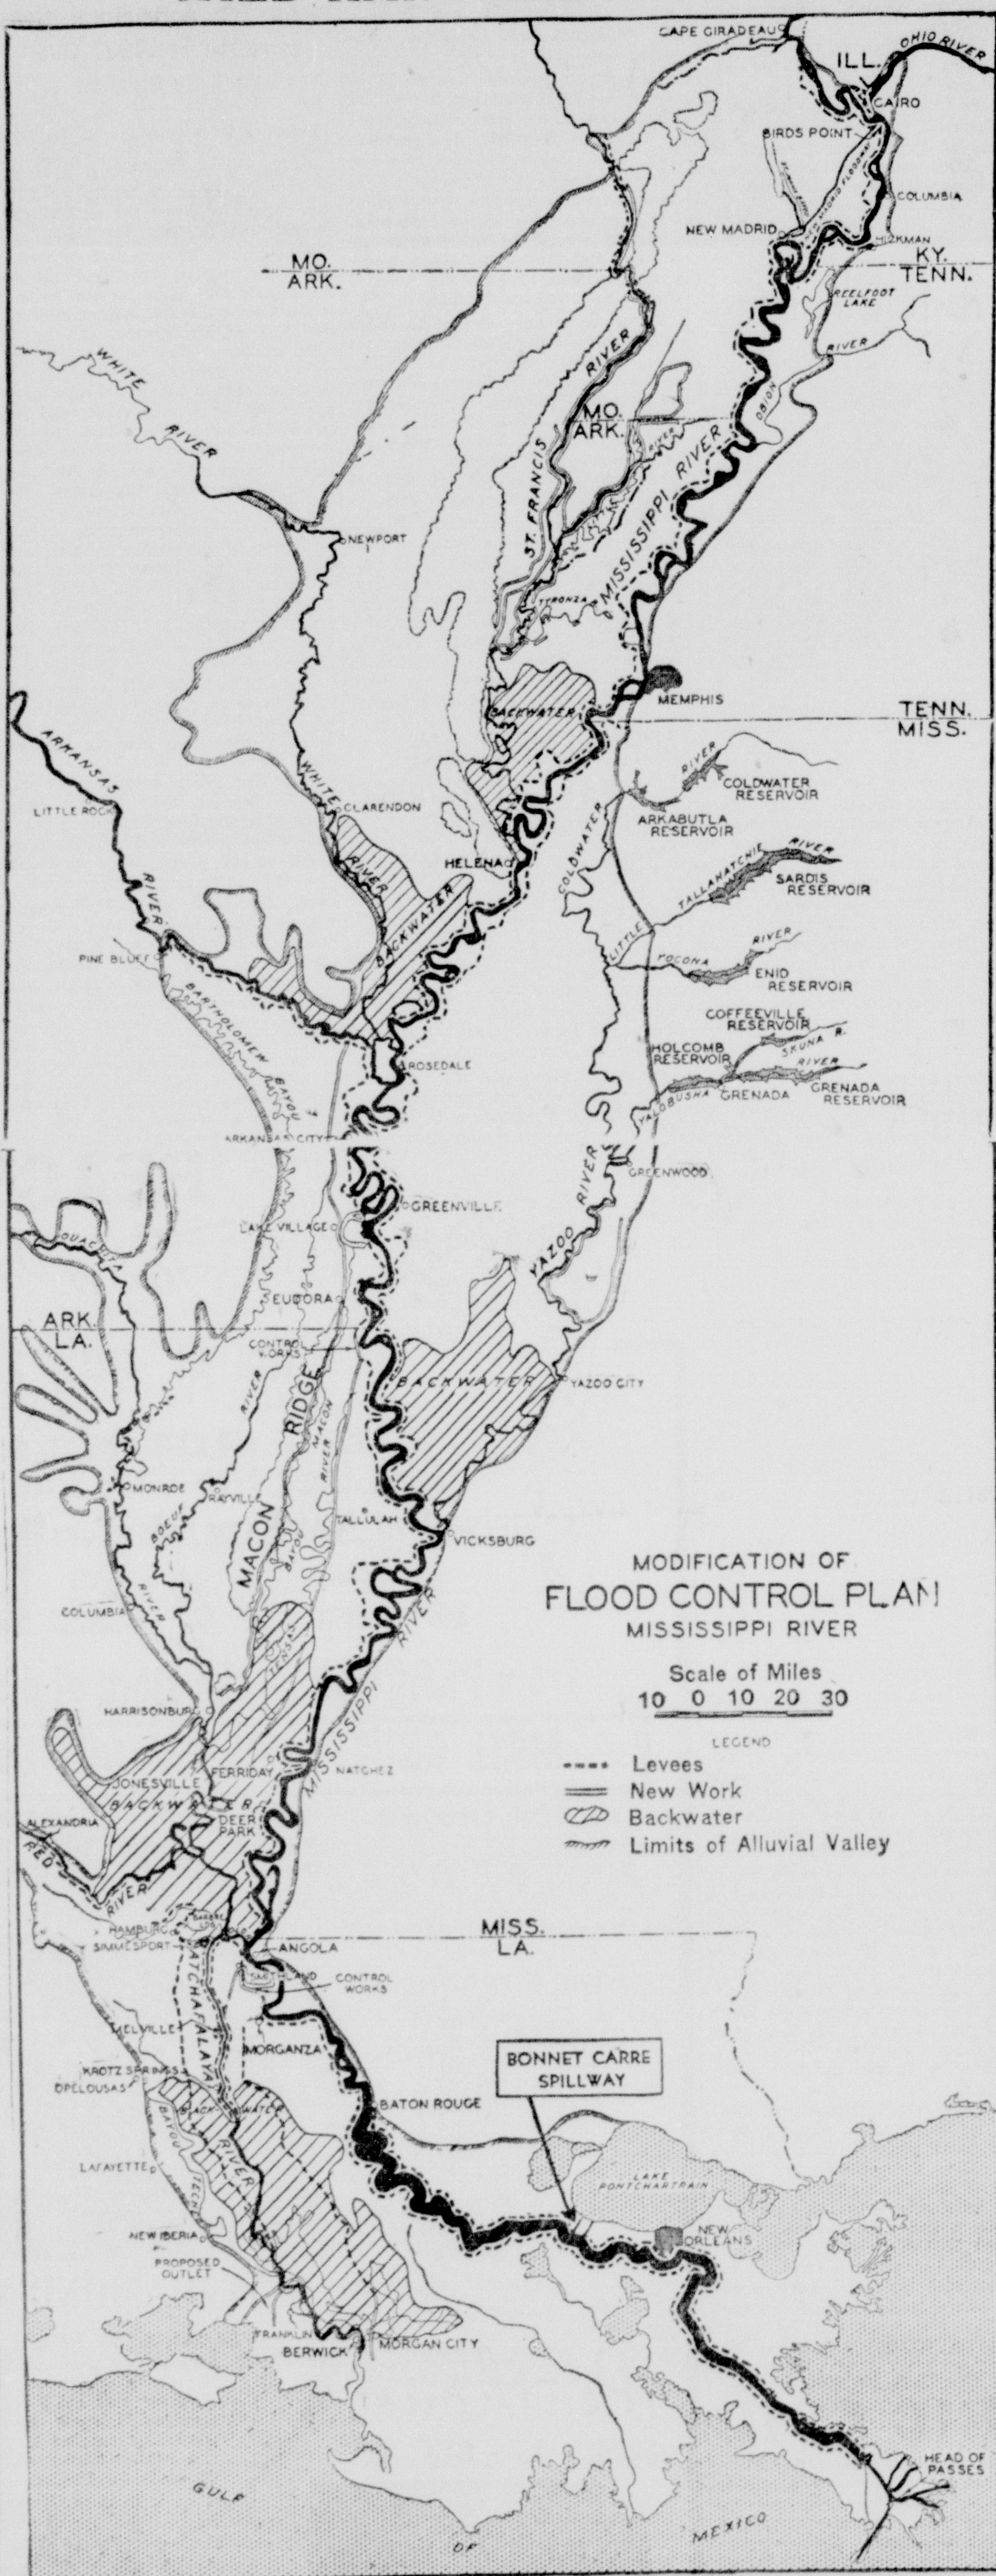

P. H. Callahan, president of the company, ordered a dozen employees to search the debris for two other company workers who have been missing since the fire.

Another flood death was reported today by Deputy Coroner M. Rodger Dougherty. He said the body of a negro identified as Henry Foster, 48, was found in his flooded home. He had drowned.

W. O. SPANGLER
TULLOS, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Funeral services for W. O. Spangler, 73, who died in a hospital in New Orleans Tuesday, January 26, were held at the Tullus Baptist church at 2 p.m. Thursday, January 28. Rev. E. A. Autrey, pastor of the Tullus church, had charge of the services, assisted by Rev. E. O. Brackman. Interment was in the Beech Creek cemetery. Mr. Spangler is survived by eight daughters, Mrs. W. M. Long, Tullus, Mrs. Della Pater, Springhill, Mrs. Mollie Mercer, Urania, Mrs. Olive Lisby and Mrs. Vina Roberts, Crowville, Mrs. Ada Barnage, Cheneyville, and Mrs. Brown and Miss Ada Spangler, Columbia; and three sons, Wilmer Spangler, Columbia, and Henry and Walter Spangler, West Monroe.

WILLIAM MONROE CURRY
William Monroe Curry, 77, for many years a plantation operator of near Newellton, died yesterday afternoon at the residence of a daughter, Mrs. G. W. Griffing, residing at 308 Louisiana avenue. He had been in failing health about two years.

The body will be taken to Natchez, Miss., today on a Missouri Pacific train leaving the passenger station at 8:38 a.m. The train is scheduled to arrive at Natchez at 1:30 p.m., and funeral services will be held shortly afterwards at the Natchez city cemetery. Burial will be made in a grave beside that of his wife, who died some time ago.

Surviving relatives, besides the daughter residing here, are: Another daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Parker of New York City; a son, Ben Curry of Denver, Colo.; and a sister, Mrs. Annie Wheeler of Woodville, Miss.

Mr. Curry was a member of the Woodmen of the World.

CUTTER TOWING IN DAMAGED FREIGHTER

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 6.—(P)—The Morgan line freighter El Occidente, her rudder broke, was taken in tow by the coast guard cutter Sebago about 50 miles off Cape Henry shortly after 3 p.m. today.

Meanwhile, another cutter hurried to the aid of the Norwegian freighter Rigel, adrift in heavy seas 300 miles off the North Carolina coast.

The steamship Teta took five men from the burning schooner William A. Morse, off the Charleston, S. C., coast and reported the vessel probably would be a total loss. The Teta continued on to Philadelphia with the schooner's crew.

Norfolk coast guardsmen said the cutter Modoc, dispatched to the assistance of the Rigel, could not reach the vessel before 9 o'clock tonight. The Rigel also had a broken rudder.

The divisional headquarters had received no message from the freighter since "a general call for ships to stand by" this morning when she was reported "lusting heavily."

The Rigel, a vessel of 2,298 tons and 3,825 gross tons, was reported to have a list of 30 degrees. One life boat had been lost. No other ships were reported near the disabled freighter. The Rigel was en route to New York from Imbicy, reports here said.

THREATS TO AVENGE SLAYINGS RUMORED

ORANGE, Tex., Feb. 6.—(P)—Rumors of threats to "avenge" the deaths of two trappers felled with buckshot and "finished off" with pistol bullets on the Neches river yesterday came from the Orange county marshes today.

Typical of swampland rumors, the reports could not be credited to any individual but were based on the contention the slain men, Etaine Richard and Albert Theriot, had relatives and friends in the Orange and New Iberia, La., sections.

H. Y. Broussard of Port Arthur, who led officers to the bodies after reporting he had killed the men in self-defense, was charged with murder.

der, District Attorney Hollis Kinard filing the complaint before Justice L. F. Branum of Orange.

Richard, a nephew of Broussard, and Theriot were trapping for Broussard, a Port Arthur fur dealer. In his statement to Orange county and Port Arthur officers Broussard said he had trouble with the men and that he had been robbed and his life threatened.

COLUMBIA CLUB HOLDS MEETING

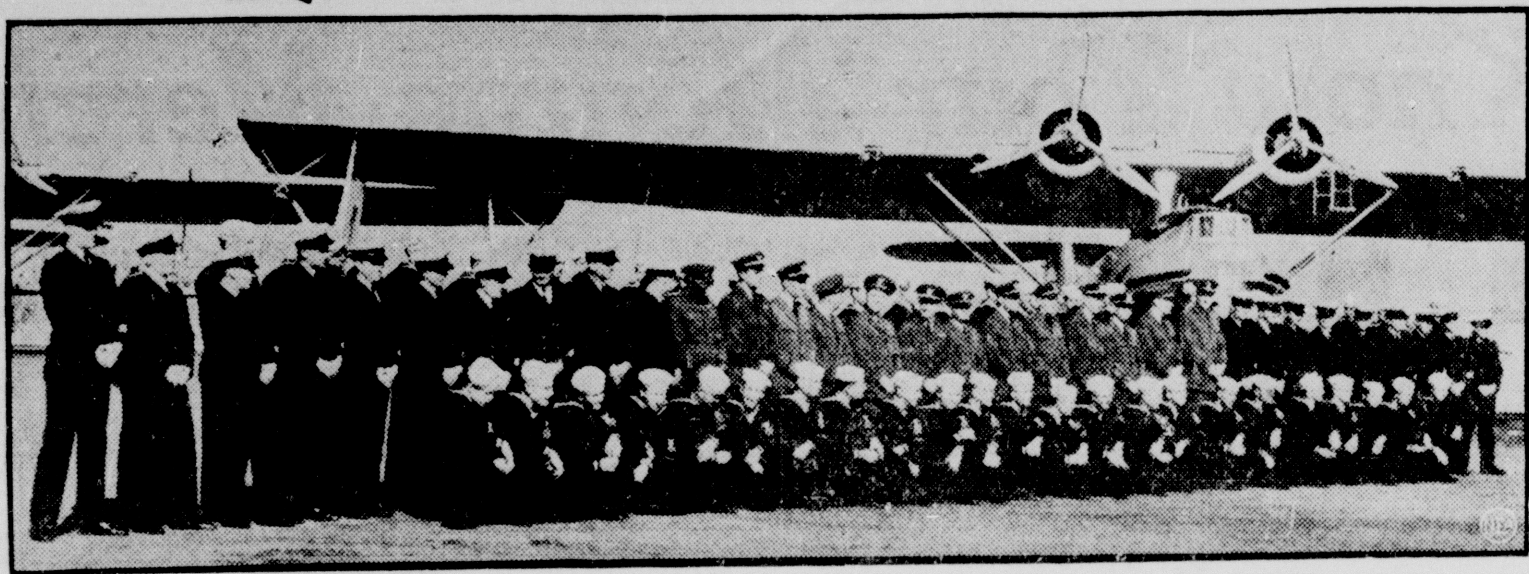

New Kiwanis Organization Installs Officers At Dinner On Friday

COLUMBIA, La., Feb. 6.—(Special) The first meeting of the recently organized Columbia Kiwanis club was held Friday night in the Baptist church, when officers were installed and an interesting program conducted by members of the Rayville Kiwanis club, which is sponsor of the new organization.

The officers of the club are: Russell Cummings, president; Guy Alford, vice-president; Louis L. West, secretary-treasurer. Board of directors: L. C. Nunn, H. Ted Woods, Rev. Virgil D. Morris, H. W. Seal, George L. Shipp, H. L. Bankston, Dr. Eldridge Carroll.

M. (Fessor) Hull, president of the Rayville Kiwanis club, presided at the dinner, the program of which was devoted to various phases of Kiwanis activities. W. D. Cotton, immediate past lieutenant-governor of the northern Louisiana division, spoke on "Kiwanis Education." W. A. Cooper, secretary of the Rayville club, discussed "Club

CONQUER PACIFIC IN NAVY'S MOST AMBITIOUS MASS FLIGHT

Lined up before 12 giant navy bombers, these officers and crew of 78 were photographed a few minutes before they climbed into their ships and took off from San Diego, bound for Honolulu, 2,270 miles distant. Although termed by Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, as merely a "routine delivery" of the planes to their Pearl Harbor base at Honolulu, the flight was the most ambitious in the history of the navy. The planes, known as PBV-1 patrol bombers, are the forerunners of an aerial fleet of 216 planes which will be stationed at strategic points on the Pacific. The flyers reached their goal in less than 22 hours.

Records." Dr. R. O. C. Green, immediate past president of the Rayville club, spoke on "Attendance." A demonstration of the method of inducting a new member was conducted. W. A. Dunlap, field executive of Kiwanis International, was present and made an address.

Presentation of the club's charter will be made with appropriate ceremonies on April 16, when District Governor Harry O. Hoffman of Jackson will be present. Regular meetings of the club will be held every Friday at 6:30 p.m. in the Baptist church. The program next Friday will be in charge of the Monroe Kiwanis club, when Fred Williamson of Monroe will be the speaker.

HOME CLUB MEETS

The Logtown Home Demonstration club met in regular session with Mrs. Billy Lutton as hostess. Mrs. J. B.

Filhiol presided at the business meeting. A donation of $5 was made to the Red Cross to aid flood sufferers. Refreshments were served to the 20 members present. The next meeting will be held at the residence of Mrs. W. J. Allen on February 10.

NEGRO MARDI GRAS PLANS COMPLETED

Monroe's annual negro Mardi Gras will be held on Monday and Tuesday under the sponsorship of the XYZ club, of which Frank Perkins is president.

Preliminary to the main carnival event in the Liberty night club, Fourteenth and Adams streets, a dance will be conducted Monday night.

On Tuesday, with all due pomp, King Zulu and his queen will arrive on a splendidly decorated yacht and will be received with regal ceremony by the assembled negro populace at the foot of Pine street. The arrival time has been set for 2 p.m. King Zulu and queen will head a parade which will proceed down Walnut street to DeSiard street and thence through downtown Monroe to the Liberty night club.

There will be a dance at the club in the afternoon upon the arrival of King Zulu and his queen and at 8:30 p.m. The grand ball of the two-day carnival will be held at which the coronation of the king and queen will take place.

Alma Washington has been named queen. Prizes will be awarded for the best dressed couple and to the couple with the most comical costumes. In the Tuesday's parade, those who enter cars are asked to have them appropriately decorated. The yacht on which King Zulu will arrive will be loaned by Senator James A. Noe. Many business houses have contributed prizes to be awarded at the ball. Music for the ball will be furnished by Ben Burden and his orchestra.

MONROE 'Y' WILL ENTERTAIN GUEST

Miss Oolooah Burner, National Secretary, Will Visit Monroe Soon

Special interest attaches to the visit which will be paid to Monroe on February 18-20 inclusive of Miss Oolooah Burner, of New York City, national secretary of the Young Women's Christian association.

Miss Burner is one of five general advisory secretaries in the southern region which includes all states south of the Mason and Dixon line. Her special activities are now being devoted to "Y" organizations from Georgia to the Texas border.

The national official is especially interested in the religious purposes of the association and in widening out of community life.

During her stay as guest of the Monroe "Y," at 904 Jackson street, Miss Burner will be entertained with a variety of functions. Mrs. Frank Stubbs and Mrs. John Theus, Jr., are members of the entertainment committee of the "Y" and are now engaged in the formulation of plans.

PONTIACS CHOSEN IN SOAP CAMPAIGN

DeLuxe Models To Be Awarded By Proctor And Gamble In Sales Promotion

Twenty new Pontiac sedans have been given away and 40 more will be awarded during the next four weeks by the Proctor and Gamble company in connection with its nation-wide Ivory soap sales campaign now being conducted.

Besides these automobiles, which are deluxe Pontiac six 1937 models, equipped with radio, the recipient will also receive 1,000 gallons of Texaco gasoline, this last being made possible through the cooperation of the Texas Oil company.

To emphasize this campaign in the Twin Cities, a parade of Pontiac cars was staged recently by A. V. Grego, manager of Union Motors Inc., 312 Walnut street, in conjunction with the local Texas Oil company agency. The cars were driven through the business districts of Monroe and West Monroe and created considerable interest.

In order to be eligible for a Pontiac car award a person is required only to register at his favorite grocery store and cast his ballot together with a 25-word statement describing the qualities of Ivory soap.

"The Proctor and Gamble company selected the Pontiac automobile as its award in its nation-wide sales campaign because of the unsurpassed quality and value of this car," Mr. Grego stated. "The Pontiac automobile is the most beautiful thing on wheels and the most economical."

The 1937 Pontiac six is equipped with the latest improvements, including all-steel body, ride stabilizer, latest knee action, turret top, Fisher no-draft ventilation and other features. It is claimed by the manufacturers as more economical than last year's model and is said to be America's finest low price car.

Grocers in the Twin Cities report considerable interest in the Proctor and Gamble company's campaign and residents in the Twin Cities await the announcement of the first award of a Pontiac deluxe six sedan in this trade territory.

PARADE OF PONTIAC AUTOMOBILES STAGED BY UNITED MOTORS, INC.

Sixty 1937 model Pontiac automobiles of the sedan type like those pictured above, are being given away by the Proctor and Gamble company in a nation-wide sales campaign to popularize the use of Ivory soap. The winners will be given 1,000 gallons of Texaco gasoline by the Texas Oil company with each automobile given away.

HOME FURNITURE HAS NEW PHILCOS

Automatic Tuning Is Sensational New Development In Radio Field

The newest feature introduced into the radio field is automatic tuning by the manufacturers of Philco radios. This feature, which has been highly advertised, is said to be one of the most forward steps developed by radio engineers to assure clear and accurate reception.

Philco radios are sold by the Home Furniture company, 501-11 DeSiard street, and this concern recently received a stock of all the latest Philco models.

"The new automatic tuning makes station selection simpler than dialing a telephone and its introduction by Philco has won a ready response from the public," J. B. Lindsay, president of the Home Furniture company, declared. "Just click the adjuster and you have your station," he said. "The spread band dial gives 50 per cent more tuning space than formerly, enabling the owner of a Philco radio to more easily separate stations which are on nearly the same frequency."

The Home Furniture company offers 36 Philco models for the purchaser's selection. These models range from an efficiency table model priced as low as $27.50 to the 116X deluxe automatic tuning model at $227.50. A Philco high efficiency aerial is included with every all-wave set. New short wave developments assure reception for twice as many foreign stations as on the old models and the built-in foreign tuning system is in coordination with the high efficiency aerial, thus doing away with many complications in securing reception of foreign stations.

Philco radio cabinets are beautifully designed, and all radios as well as other merchandise at the store are sold on convenient terms by the Home Furniture company.

Approximately 3,200 cubic feet of helium, 95 to 98 per cent pure, is required to support 200 pounds.

IMPORTANT TESTS MADE BY UNITED

Local Electrical Service Company Thoroughly Checks All Power Parts

Underneath the hood of every automobile there are 12 component parts which constitute the electric automotive power and furnish pressure. These parts are the vital organs of an automobile and constitute its heart, eyes and lungs. They do not include the engine or other moving parts. They must function properly at all times in order for the car owner to obtain the ultimate service and enjoyment from an automobile.

United Electric Service, Inc., 306 North Third street, undertakes to correct and adjust all troubles affecting these vital car organs and for this purpose has installed equipment and testing devices costing more than $4,000 and approved by the finest automotive engineers in the industry.

A feature of United Electric Service, Inc., is its 1-to-12 performance check. When an automobile drives into the service department of this concern an expert, factory trained mechanic takes it in hand. Quickly but carefully he applies the testing instruments and other mechanical "doctors" to all vital car parts. The tests include battery, cables, lights, starter current draw, spark plugs, valve clearance and valve action, compression, distributor timing and governor action coil and condenser, ignition cables and suppressors, fuel pump pressure and connections, vacuum test and manifold, carburetor adjustment and air clear, generator and charging rate.

This important test is performed by the United Electric Service, Inc., without charge.

After this thorough check the customer is furnished an estimate of the cost of correcting faults located by the mechanical "doctors" and if acceptable, furnishes genuine parts from its well stocked parts department and guarantees its work in all its departments. This performance check applies to trucks as well as automobiles and United Electric Service, Inc., keeps genuine parts for all standard make of cars and trucks and employs only factory trained experts in all its departments.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tranos of Norfolk, Neb., hold a triple anniversary every January 15. They were married January 15, 1916 and January 15 is the birth date of each.

COURT OF HONOR HELD FOR BOY SCOUT TROOP

A Boy Scout court of honor was held at Bastrop recently with six boys of troop number 3 of that city receiving honors.

NEON SIGNS NOW MOST POPULAR

Brilliant Displays, Cheaper Than Other Signs, Find Favor In Monroe

Neon signs have taken the place of the electric bulb display sign because of better performance and greater economy in operation, according to L. H. Serwich, manager of the Neon Sign company, with workshops and office at 504 Walnut street.

"A saving of from 50 to 100 per cent may be expected from Neon display signs over the cost of other electrical display signs," Mr. Serwich said. "Neon signs were first introduced to the commercial world about 20 years ago. Since that time they have displaced the old-fashioned electric bulb sign and are used all over the world."

Neon signs used in Monroe are made entirely in the local Neon Sign company workshop here. Tubes, metal work, installation are all the work of the local company, which is a real home industry. A crew of seven expert Neon sign makers are permanently employed. Only the Neon gas is brought here from outside markets.

Neon signs operate on a principle of high frequency voltage. The glass tubes are subjected to a vacuum after which the Neon gas is injected and the tubes sealed. When connected with electrical energy, the usual 100 volts is stepped up to a voltage of 15,000 and the resultant vibrations cause the gas in the tubes to glow. Neon signs may be had in many colors, including four shades of green and blue, three shades of red, in white color and natural daylight.

Mr. Serwich reports that the business of his company has increased steadily each month since last February and that he expects 1937 to be a successful year for the company.

The Neon Sign company has erected most of the Neon signs on display in Monroe, including the Virginia Hotel roof, Alvis hotel, Union Bus station, Frenchies' Cafe No. 2, Sig Haas and others.

The alert peddler quickly places a contract into your hand. With the pencil all ready, you are liable to be influenced into signing before you know it. Think twice, and then DON'T.

Sign Nothing, Do No Buying Until You Have Read And Considered The Facts Printed On This Page.

The facts on this page are well worth lengthy consideration. They have been taken from actual occurrences of record, and point the way to the many pitfalls encountered by the average person who comes under the influence of the Itinerant Peddler. Read them and profit by the reading. YOU don't want to be duped! You do not want to throw away the money you have honestly acquired.

This Is Not a "Whispering Campaign"

The Facts and Figures Were Gathered From
The Most Reliable Sources

This series of pages is not a "whispering campaign," calculated to wield a subtle big stick over legitimate industry. It has been compiled from facts and figures gathered from reliable sources and its purpose is to protect the average buyer in this city, from the imposition of fraud and disappointment.

What you bought was A PHOTOGRAPH not a coupon.

One day you responded to a tap on the door or a ring of the door bell. An agreeable looking person (either man or woman) smilingly intrigued you into a conversation as some attractive looking photographs were spread before your eyes. You hadn't had a picture made of little Mary since she was a tiny tot . . . you wanted to surprise "DADDY" . . . you bought a coupon . . . WHAT DID YOU FINALLY GET FOR YOUR MONEY? For complete satisfaction, patronize your local photographer.

Don't be misled by the oily tongued man on your doorstep . . .

Resolve NOW that you will not waste your time entertaining smooth talking strangers. Many of them are skilled artists when it comes to painting charming word pictures. While they may be entertaining, you profit nothing.

"I Opened My Door For a Stranger—"

Mrs. B—, who lives in a nearby city, opened her front door one afternoon and admitted a well-dressed woman. The "poor" woman was weary and talked for quite a while, attempting to interest Mrs. B— in a new styled can opener which she was selling. The interview seemed to last unnecessarily long. The following night Mrs. B— was honored with a visit from burglars. Subsequent investigation by the local police led to the capture of a gang of burglars for whom the woman went about "getting a lay of the land."

"I Ordered a Suit From a Peddler—"

A gentleman in this city recently related to a group of friends his experience with what he called "my first adventure in peddler buying." The samples submitted were fine examples of woollens . . . the fabrics and patterns were stylish . . . the quality apparently was splendid . . . and the price? Why, there wasn't a store in town that could match it. Then came the day of revelation. The suit arrived and was a misfit . . . the quality of the merchandise was way below par while it slightly resembled the sample in style and quality.

"I Studied a Business 'By Mail' Course—"

A bright lad of 19 was working during the day and was attempting to progress through night study. He enrolled with a "business college" whose advertising made promises that an older head would have laughed at. In fact, if the man who had written the advertising had written the course, it would have been good. They promised him a job along with a lot of other things they could not deliver. Then he was days and days awaiting enlightenment on some problem. He finally gave up in despair and went to a local business college and is today on his way to achievement.

HEED THIS WARNING From Your POLICE CHIEF

DON'T admit strangers to your home. They may be surveying your premises as the forerunner of a burglary.

DON'T sign any contracts which a stranger offers. This is the way some shrewd forgers have secured signatures.

DON'T hire servants until you have assured yourself through investigation that they are honest and bear good records.

DON'T cash checks for strangers. You have no way of knowing their worth or worthlessness.

DON'T open our door wide to strangers. Place our foot behind it when it is partly opened. Daylight burglars have forced an entrance many times.

DON'T give strangers any information about yourself or about your neighbors.

"Muvver Bought Me Candy"

A fond mother in a moment of weakness was induced by a passing peddler to buy of his wares. To the exuberant youngster was passed it on. It tasted good. That night the little fellow put up a battle with death that challenged the skill of the Doctor.

"I Bought a Dress—"

"Yes, I bought a dress from a passing peddler. What a shock when I unboxed it. I will never forget my feelings. Why had I, a person with the average intelligence, allowed myself to be so smartly tricked. But there was nothing I could do about it except to decide that I would never do it again."

"I Bought Some Books—"

The experience of this fourteen-year-old boy, as told by his parents, is worth heeding. He broke into his bank on the shelf, bought some books from an advertisement in a cheap magazine and received the most licentious literature that has been printed. The parents are trying to prosecute the publisher but this will cost money and they MAY lose the case.

'TWINNS' SELECTED AS NAME FOR LOCAL CLUB

SPORTS CHATTER

GEORGE V. LOFTON, SPORTS EDITOR

MONROE, LOUISIANA, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1937

MANY NICKNAMES SUBMITTED FOR BASEBALL TEAM

Burnett To Attend League Meeting Today; Box Seats, Signs On Sale

The Monroe baseball club will be known as the "Twins."

That name was selected yesterday by a committee which waded through hundreds of nicknames submitted during the past week in a contest to determine a suitable cognomen for the city's new ball club.

The winning name was submitted by two fans, O. D. Johnson, of 301 Plum street, Monroe, and Andrew, 307 So. Second street, West Monroe, and one of them will be given a season pass. Both will be present when their names are dropped in a hat and one drawn therefrom. They will be advised this week when the "ceremony" will take place.

The last team that Monroe sponsored in the Cotton States league was called Twins and, peculiarly, only two persons submitted the name in the present contest.

The judges thought the name particularly appropriate in view of the fact that Monroe and West Monroe, both of which contain hundreds of real baseball fans are known as the Twin Cities. Secondly, the Texarkana club, which is a Monroe farm, is called the Twins because of the two Texarkanas, one in Arkansas and the other in Texas. Thus both clubs operated by the local owner will have the same nickname.

Many of the names submitted were suggestive of the gas and oil industry, such as Gassers, Drillers, Oilers, Gas-sox, etc. However, just about every name imaginable was sent in, as the following list, giving part of the suggestions, will indicate:

Luckies, Cornets, Cousins, Mules, Indians, Pelicans, Red Birds, Rough-necks, Gas Fighters, Orioles, Beavers, Nighthawks, Cardinals, Sports, Eagles, Pilots, Bombers, Oilmen, Reds, White Sox, Red Sox, Casanovas, Sluggers, Speeders, Cats, Cubs, Tigers, Herders, Wallpapers Hitters, Newcomers, Wreckers, Stingers, Travelers, Bangers, Winners, Busters, Naturals, Poppers, Buddies, Snappers, Bouncers, Giants, Bulldogs, Snaps, Bounders, Foxes, Bendis, Burnetts, Miro, Anglers, Frog, Farmers and Huskers.

That's just a partial list. There are others just as good (or funny). Many persons sent in the same name, such as Gassers, Pelicans, Cornets and, of course, the nicknames of the various major league clubs and the names of animals, such as Lions, Tigers, etc. R. W. Burnett, business manager of the Monroe club, left last night for Shreveport with J. Walter Morris, president of the Cotton States league, and will go to El Dorado this morning to attend the annual schedule meeting of the league. Mr. Burnett will return here Monday morning.

The local owner said yesterday that work on the park will be completed this week and everything will be in readiness for baseball out at Casino park within a few days. Box seats and sign space on the new fence will go on sale at baseball headquarters at 626 Burnett building tomorrow. Mr. Burnett said. Boxes which entitle the purchaser to six seats will be sold for $30, $25 and $20 per season, depending upon the location. Most of the boxes are sold for the entire season, of course, although several boxes will be held out for sale of individual seats during the season.

Already a number of youngsters have enrolled for the free baseball school here, despite the fact that the school doesn't open until March. Eddie Hick, Monroe manager, Bill Windle, pilot of the Texarkana club, and other experienced baseball men will be here to instruct the aspiring candidates. There will be no tuition charge, the students merely paying their own board and furnishing their playing equipment.

LEAGUE MEETS TODAY
GREENVILLE, Miss., Feb. 6.—(P)—Directors of the Cotton States baseball league club in Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, began assembling in El Dorado, Ark., tonight for a meeting tomorrow.

Judge Emmet Hart, president of the Greenville Bucks, and Joe Bell Harrison, Jr., a director of the local club, left here this afternoon for the meeting accompanied by local newspapermen and H. G. (Slim) Brewer, business manager of the Clarkdale club.

At the league assembly J. Walter Morris, Shreveport, president of the circuit, will preside. Jackson has withdrawn from membership and at this meeting Vicksburg will be formally welcomed into the fold.

Two changes have been effected in membership of the league this year. Monroe has taken the place of the Cleveland club and Vicksburg will succeed Jackson. Baseball leaders here said the circuit will be more compact than last season.

The schedule will be adopted and the following clubs will post their forfeits: Vicksburg, Greenville, Clarkdale and Greenwood in Mississippi; El Dorado, Pine Bluff and Helena in Arkansas and Monroe, La.

GREENVILLE CLUB SELLS SHORTSTOP TO PIEDMONT
GREENVILLE, Miss., Feb. 6.—(P)—Judge Emmet Hart, president of the Greenville Bucks of the Cotton States league, announced today sale of Hal Schultz, young shortstop, to the Portsmouth, Va., club of the Piedmont league, a class "B" circuit.

The sale price of Schultz was $400. Under the terms, $100 is to be paid immediately and the remaining $300 in the event Schultz remains with the Portsmouth club after May 15.

Fight Plans Further Muddled As Detroit Seeks Bout

COACHES WOULD CLARIFY FORWARD PASS REGULATION

Football Mentors Favor Giving Greater Freedom To The Defense

DETROIT, Feb. 6.—(P)—An attempt to clarify the forward pass interference rule, source of woe in football, headed six recommendations framed today by the rules committee of the American Football Coaches' association.

Purposely giving greater freedom to the defense, the committee of coaches recommended new rule phrasing emphasizing that bodily contact is not of itself interference.

Besides re-writing the interference rule, the coaches recommended a reduction from 15 to five yards in the shift penalty, but otherwise treated the regulations mildly. They turned down proposals to move the goal posts to the goal line and allow forward passing from any point behind the scrimmage line.

The recommended pass interference rule, framed by Lieutenant Gar Davidson, Army coach, and adopted after prolonged discussion, reads virtually the same as the current regulation except for singling out body contact. The recommended rule:

"During a forward pass play, whether or not the pass crosses the line of scrimmage with any player of either team who is eligible to catch the pass, no interference shall be called."

"Other bodily contact, regardless of the degree of contact, as may occur when two or more eligible players make a simultaneous and bona fide effort to catch or bat the ball, should not be construed as interference."

This wording, Committee Spokesman Gus Dorais, University of Detroit coach, pointed out, will tend to remove "pressure" from the officials. The present rule tends to emphasize "no interference whatsoever," Dorais said.

Dorais as did fellow coaches said their suggestion still leaves enforcement much to the officials' discretion.

With Coaches Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Elmer Layden of Notre Dame as proponents, among others, the coaches recommended the reduction to five yards of the penalty for players in motion after the shift. Do-rais said the committee agreed the kicking team still would lose possession.

The rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic association will act on the recommendations.

L. S. U. NOSES OUT TULANE, 46 TO 42

Tigers Win Second Straight But Greenies Make It Close In Last Tilt

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 6.—(P)—Louisiana State university made it two straight over Tulane's basketball team tonight by copping a fast game, 46 to 42.

Tulane was going strong at the finish of the game which was close all the way, and Louisiana State supporters were glad to hear the final whistle. L. S. U. defeated the Green Wave cagers last night 42 to 31.

Ruth Admits He Yearns For Baseball 'Glamor'

'If It Wasn't For Golf, I'd Go Nuts,' Says Babe On 43rd Birthday

By Paul Mickelson
NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(P)—It was time to quit for the day. The work of writing was done and there was nothing to do but go home, when the telephone rang.

"This is Babe Ruth," said a voice at the other end of the wire. "I'll be 43 years old tomorrow, so why don't you come over and join me in a little celebration?"

The Babe himself, plump and smiling, came to the door with a "Hy there, how's tricks?" when the reporters reached his Riverside drive apartment.

"Feeling fine and my golf game's getting better every day," said the Bambino, tightening the cord of his dressing gown. "I weigh 240 which is about five pounds heavier than when I used to slug that apple."

"Babe," he was asked, "no fooling now, how much do you really miss baseball, the applause of the crowd, and the attention you used to get as the great hero of the diamond?"

"Boys," said the Babe, his eyes on one of the hundred pictures of former triumphs that decorated the wall, "boys, if it wasn't for golf, I think I'd die. God bless the man who invented golf."

The great man, deep in reverie the night before his forty-third birthday, did his best acting. He was jovial enough but it didn't take a student of human nature or a mind reader to know that deep down inside he was a big, lonely man waiting for the day when he could recapture the glories of today.

"Babe, why don't you take a job managing a minor league club, get some experience in managing and then go in the market for a major league pilot's job?" he was asked.

"Oh, no," said the forgotten big man of the diamond. "No minors for me. It's a major league job or nothing. And so far it's been nothing. I don't know. Maybe I'm spoiled by it all, but I'll never manage a minor league ball club."

"But can golf keep your mind off baseball?"

"It does okay by me so far. I played at least 365 games last year—that's one game or one round a day and I'm nuts about the game. My score's in the low 70's now. I'm going to Bermuda next week to compete in the invitational tournament down there. Think I got a good chance to win it."

"Babe, if you had some advice for the young baseball rookies coming up today, what would it be?"

"I'd tell 'em not to get too swell-headed. You can't tell what's going to happen. Joe DiMaggio looked like a million bucks last year. What'll he do in '37? Can't tell. My advice to those young fellows is to hustle, wear the same size hats and save their dough."

Freddie Steele Makes His Eastern Debut Next Week

By John J. Romano
Getting back to the sensible part of Steele's make-up is the quiet way he has gone about making friends. He answers all questions and has a good word to say about everyone he defeated. Add to this the fine show he makes in the gym and you go away with the impression that the young man knows what the hard game is all about.

No pity money purses for Freddie. He demanded and received $10,000 for his sprightly bout with Jones. He is getting $25,000 for his third meeting with Babe Risko at Madison Square Garden on the nineteenth. If one were to question his right to exact such a stiff purse indoors Steele can counter by saying that that was the amount he had to guarantee the former navy fighter for a chance at the crown.

Steele has had pretty much his own way about the size of his purse and the selection of his rivals. Anyone else in his place would have done the same. Freddie was the only good card in the northwest. Fighters were glad of an opportunity to meet him. As Steele was the attraction he rightly deserved the bigger portion of the receipts. And as he was but a growing youngster it was only natural that his manager was unduly careful about the ability of his opponents.

All in all the plan worked out swell. Many others in like position did not have the ability or the intestinal courage to stick to his last and reach the heights. There is nothing of the "play-boy" in Steele. He has a sweetheart, his mother. No one else counts until he has her domiciled in her own home, with a nice account in the bank, and an annuity for himself.

Childhood No Red Of Roses
Steele's career in the fight game was just as rough as it was when he was a spindly little kid trying to induce Dave Miller to get him a preliminary fight. He knew little of his father who drifted off when he was a little tot, and selling papers and doing odd jobs was his lot until the dollars he earned swapping punches in a

LOUIS' MANAGERS SEEK TO CHANGE SITE OF TITLE GO

Gould Insists Bout Must Be Held At Soldier Field Or Not At All

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(P)—Joe Louis' manager, John Roxborough, added a new objection tonight to the controversy over the site for the proposed Jim Braddock-Louis heavyweight title bout this summer.

With Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, insisting the fight must be held at Soldier field, Chicago, instead of Comiskey park, Roxborough stepped up and demanded the bout be taken from Chicago altogether and moved to Louis' home town, Detroit.

"And Joe will fight Braddock in Detroit, or there'll be no fight," Roxborough declared.

Gould, who earlier had called off his trip to Chicago Monday and thereupon abandoned plans to sign for the Roxborough's outburst.

"This is the first I've heard of that angle," he said. "All I know is that Jack Kearns (Detroit promoter) offered Jim and I $500,000 last week to fight Louis in Detroit. I told him I couldn't dicker with him as long as the negotiations were going on in Chicago. And they're still going on."

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who has Louis under contract, was unavailable for comment on the latest turn of affairs. He has indicated he would like the fight in Comiskey park in Chicago, but this afternoon, after hearing Gould's ultimatum demanding Soldier field, he intimated he probably would go along with the request of the Braddock camp.

Roxborough's statement came after a conference with Kearns and Detroit officials. Under the present plans, the fight, if held there, would be staged at 20 rounds in Navin field, late in June.

These fast-breaking angles had everyone hanging on the ropes and left the principals about as close together as Delhi, India, and Winfield, Kas.

There will be no signing of contracts for the fight in Chicago Monday as first announced. And there may never be any Chicago fight at all unless Soldier Field, Chicago's gigantic lake front stadium, is made available for the fight at a reasonable rental.

Joe Gould, manager of the champion, said he would not consider Comiskey park, home of the Chicago White Sox, as the fight site.

"It'll be Soldier Field or no fight in Chicago," growled Gould defiantly. "Comiskey park isn't large enough."

Promoter Jacobs, who holds Louis' contract to fight when and where Mr. Jacobs thinks best, was a bit worn and frayed over all the bickering.

"As long as Gould wants Soldier Field, I suppose I'll have to be Soldier Field, or else," said Jacobs. "You can hardly blame Gould. He has to get as much out of the fight as he can for his fighter. Anyway, it's Chicago's fight and Chicago should be able and willing to turn Soldier Field over at a reasonable rental."

Asked what he thought would be a fair rental, Jacobs said five per cent of the net should be enough. The usual rate, it is understood, is 10 to 15 per cent.

Jacobs said he would wait for Matchmaker Joe Foley of Chicago to make the next move. Foley advised that he was confident he could line up the stadium by Monday or Tuesday. Soldier Field has a seating capacity of 130,000 as against about 75,000 at Comiskey park.

Jacobs said he would stay in New York until February 15 when Braddock is billed to engage in a pair of two-round fights against Eddie Kotwack of Garfield, N. J., and Eddie Cook, Havana negro. Although the New York state athletic commission heretofore has refused to sanction

KELLY QUINTET SHADES GRAYSON TEAM, 20 TO 18
KELLY, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—The Kelly High school basketball team noosed out the Grayson High school five, 20 to 18, in a hard fought game here Thursday night to win the second in a series of three games with Grayson.

Grayson started fast and was leading, 10 to 6, at the end of the first period, but Kelly came back stronger in the second quarter to hold the visitors scoreless and gain a 12 to 10 edge at the half. Grayson was still unable to score in the third quarter, but Kelly held closely aloft, and then in the last period both teams began striving hard to get the winning margin. With hard to get Steele to play Kelly tied up the score, 18 to 18, but Bruce Gough, local forward, broke through to loop a field goal for the winning points just as the game ended. Kelly's lineup included Gough, who was high scorer with 11 points, and Laird, forwards; Fletcher, center; Stephens, Gandy and Starling, guards.

Fortenberry, of Forrest, defeated Thomas.
Cagnoliati, Tallulah, defeated O'Neil.
Fairly, Tallulah, defeated Yates.
Ezwin, Tallulah, knocked out Townsend in third round.
Roberson, Forrest, won on forfeit of Toad, who was ill.
K. Nettles, Tallulah, defeated Butler.
Edgerton, Tallulah, knocked out Parker in first round.
Bostick, Tallulah, defeated Hogue.
Moberly, Tallulah, defeated Kik-laid.

to loop a field goal for the winning points just as the game ended. Kelly's lineup included Gough, who was high scorer with 11 points, and Laird, forwards; Fletcher, center; Stephens, Gandy and Starling, guards.

Others had the same impression after watching Freddie go through his paces. New York fight fans will know just how good Steele can fight after his Risco auto. If he wins, which he figures to do, a move to bring Freddie into an open air fight will be in order. How that match will pack them in! It will be one of the rare times Jimmy will meet a man his own weight.

Matthews-Monroe Bout Tops Monday Mitt Card

Thirty Rounds Of Boxing Scheduled For Roosevelt Stadium Tomorrow

A fight card of 30 rounds, headed by a 10-round main event between Oscar Matthews, hard hitting Tallulah negro, and Battling Monroe, clever brawler of New Orleans, will be presented at Roosevelt stadium Monday night, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

The complete card was announced last night by Promoter Phil Lisotta. It is as follows:

Main event—Oscar Matthews, 138, Tallulah, La., vs. Battling Monroe, 180, New Orleans, 10 rounds.
Semi-final—Kid Harris, 147, New Orleans, vs. Joe Guiley, 149, Monroe, six rounds.

Preliminary—Jack Webb, 140, Monroe, vs. Baby Lightfoot, 147, West Monroe, six rounds.
Preliminary—Jim Jackson, 126, Monroe, vs. Charles Lewis, 124, Monroe, four rounds.

Preliminary—Kid Napoleon, 131, Monroe, vs. Ivory Smith, 132, Monroe, four rounds.

All are negro fighters.
The appearance of Matthews will be the first here since he began his spectacular career at the stadium a year and a half ago. Since that time, the burly Tallulah negro has won 18 matches by knockouts and lost only one, and that to an opponent against whom he fractured his arm and it was necessary to stop the fight.

Matthews, a 21 years old and was discovered by Jimmie Yeates, coach of the Tallulah High school boxing team, when he was employed at a sawmill at Tallulah. Yeates saw possibilities in the big negro and undertook to show him some of the fine points of boxing. He succeeded admirably and now Matthews is in demand all over the south, and Yeates expects to take him east within the next few months. If Oscar beats Monroe here Monday night, Yeates says he will claim the negro heavyweight championship of the south for his fighter.

Monroe, although spotting Matthews several pounds, may give the Tallulah boy some trouble. He has been working out at the stadium for the past week and appears in the best of condition. His record indicates that he can go against Matthews, as he has beaten bigger boys than the Madison parish entry.

Matthews, incidentally, will fight the semi-final on the John Henry Lewis card at New Orleans this month and later will go to Galveston to meet Big Ben Benson in the main event of a stellar card there.

The semi-final between Kid Harris, the clever New Orleans boxer and Joe Guiley, hard hitting Tallulah schoolboy, also is creating quite a bit of interest here. The two fought a diam-bang draw in six rounds at the stadium a couple of weeks ago and it gave the fans plenty of action. Both are confident of victory Monday night and some fast fist fireworks are expected when they meet again.

Promoter Lisotta said the officials for the card have not been selected.

TALLULAH BOXERS BEAT FOREST, 8-2
TALLULAH, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—The Tallulah High school boxing team defeated the Forest High school boxers 8 to 2 in a match here. The winning team scored three technical knockouts.

EVERYBODY'S LOSS

The death yesterday of R. D. Swayze shocked the entire city, but none will regret his passing more than those who were connected with sporting activities throughout the community.

Mr. Swayze was a real fan—he it baseball, football, wrestling or what not. He attended all sporting events, but he was particularly fond of baseball and wrestling.

When Walter Morris, president of the Cotton States league, told us there was a possibility of Monroe obtaining a franchise in the league, the first man we called upon for assistance was R. D. Swayze. Mr. Swayze was elated that professional baseball might return here and he pledged his efforts toward the successful consummation of any plans that would give local fans an opportunity to enjoy the game once again. Time after time we consulted with him concerning various problems that confronted the proposed club and not once did he fail to respond wholeheartedly in an effort to assist those who were trying to bring baseball back to Monroe.

BROWN PLAYS ANTLERS 2 GAMES THIS WEEK

ALL-AMERICAS ON COLORADO SPRINGS BASKETBALL TEAM

Millers Confident They Can Even Score With A. A. U. League Rivals

Brown Paper mill's basketball team will swing back into Missouri Valley A. A. U. league competition this week when the Millers tangle with the Antlers hotel quintet of Colorado Springs Wednesday and Thursday nights at Brown gym.

The Brownies dropped a 49-37 decision to the Antlers during the local club's recent invasion of Colorado and are anxious to even the score. Cary Phillips and his cagers seem confident that they can trim the Colorado Springs entry this week.

Phillips said last night that the Brown club would be at its peak for the battle with the strong Antlers. Theo Alford, forward, who suffered a leg injury during the recent road trip, will be in good shape by Wednesday night. The Brown manager said it was thought that Alford would not see action against the Hunt Oilers Friday night but he was able to start and lasted out the entire game, much to the satisfaction of the Brown management.

"Alford will be ready," Phillips said, "and that was the only thing that was worrying me. I believe we can take the Antlers for the first time in a long time. We ran into them at Colorado Springs but with an even division of the luck, we all feel that we can take care of ourselves Wednesday and Thursday nights."

The Colorado Springs entry has a rugged team, paced by a pair of sure shots in the persons of Francis Johnson and Willard Schmidt. Both Johnson and Schmidt are all-America stars of national repute and each is a great shot. Johnson, who played here last year as a member of the national A. A. U. championship Globe Refiners and later went to Berlin with the United States Olympic team, was high point man against Brown at Colorado Springs. Schmidt, who played a great floor game, was runner-up to Johnson in that encounter.

Johnson, who is six feet, two inches tall and weighs 180 pounds, is a graduate of the University of Wichita and won all-America honors in 1935 and 1936. He was high scorer of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. league last year and won similar honors in the national A. A. U. tournament. He is one of the fastest and most aggressive forwards in the game.

Schmidt is the real giant of basketball. He is six feet, nine inches tall and weighs 210 pounds. He also was a member of the national championship McPherson Oilers last season and joined the rest of the stars on the Olympic team for the trip to Berlin. He is a great tip-in man, using his height to good advantage on both backstops.

Tom Merrick, six foot, two inches forward, is another star who was twice chosen all-American. He played with the Denver Pigs for four years and is a great shot.

Other members of the quad are Harold Berglund and Cleo Petty, forwards; Bill Kinney, center, and Charles Bailey, Jim Riley, Rolfe Gardner, Elmo Wright, Harold Finney and John Witasek, guards.

Officials for the games probably will be Alvin Bell, referee, and Vernon "Lefty" Hayes, umpire. Phillips said, although no official notification of those selections have been received from Bill Miller, president of the league.

The games will start at 8 o'clock.

Neville Boxers Meet Farmerville And Lafayette Teams

TWO STARS OF ANTLERS QUINT

Francis Johnson, left, and Rolfe Gardner are two of the outstanding stars of the Antlers Hotel basketball squad, which meets Brown Paper mill here Wednesday and Thursday. Johnson, an all-America star, was a member of the A. A. U. championship Globe Refiners last year and later went to Berlin as a member of the United States Olympic team.

State college center, led his team to a decisive 49 to 27 victory over the Millers cagers here tonight, in the only game to be played between the two teams this season.

K. Currie, Millers forward, was almost as effective as Stone in hitting the basket, but his mates could not find the hoop, and the Maroons pulled away to an early lead and were in no danger at any stage of the game.

any fight under four rounds, it is expected to make an exception in Bradlock's case as he will be fighting four rounds, only against two fighters instead of one.

Meanwhile, Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden fired another salvo at Manager Gould, whom he accused of carrying Bradlock over the hill to the posturing.

"Gould and the rest of them know they can't break the contract we hold with them—that Bradlock must make his first title defense for Madison Square Garden—but Gould goes right on planning with his head somewhere around the moon."

"Bradlock will go down in history as the worst managed of all heavy-weight champions. Why, I made more money for stumble bums than Gould has made for Bradlock. Poor Jimmy, I'll bet he wishes he were back on the docks getting seven dollars a day instead of chasing Gould around town."

CUNNINGHAM WINS MILLROSE EVENT FROM OLD RIVAL

Kansas Beats Venck In Feature Of Traz Carnival; San Romani Third

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham, king of American mares, re-asserted his supremacy tonight by coming from behind on the last lap to whip his old rival, Gene Venck, of the New York A. C., by six yards, in the Wanamaker mile, feature of the 30th annual Millrose A. A. track and field carnival in Madison Square Garden. Cunningham was blocked in 4 minutes, 14.4 seconds, exactly six seconds off his own world record.

Archie San Romani, black-haired Emporia (Kan.) collegian, outgouged Don Lash to win a thrilling stretch duel for third place by inches. The pair trailed Venck by five yards. Charles Fenske of Wisconsin, fifth and last in the all-star field, was another seven yards back.

The classic Millrose 600-yard race saw Eddie O'Brien, Syracuse Olympian and 1936 winner, yield to the speedy finish of James Herbert, New York university negro freshman, in a four-man race, in which the lanky Pittsburgh negro and Olympic 800-meter titleholder, John Woodruff, finished last.

Charley Beetham, national 800-meter champion, out-stepped Woodruff for third place.

Sueo Oye, great Japanese pole vaulter, signaled his American debut with a brilliant victory with his initial indoor test. Oye cleared 14 feet 3 inches to beat the Olympic champion, Earle Meadows of Southern California, as well as the world outdoor record-holder, George Varoff of Oregon.

Meadows finished second at 14 feet while Varoff did 13 feet 9 inches the same as Yale's Bill Harding. Because of a slight heel bruise, Oye made no attempt to better the world indoor record of 14 feet 4 inches, set by Yale's Keith Brown three years ago.

The surprise winner of the two-mile run was Tommy Deckard, little Indiana university runner, who raced off by himself to victory in the sparkling time of 9 minutes.

While his veteran team-mate, Don Lash, concentrated upon jockeying tactics that led to the defeat of the widely heralded Rideout twins, from North Texas Teachers college.

Lash closed with a burst of speed to finish second, after wearing down Wayne Rideout in a two-man jockeying duel, but Don was 30 yards behind Deckard. Wayne Rideout faltered on the last two laps and finished seventh while Brother Blaine, who had previously fallen and withdrawn from a 1,000-yard race, was eighth.

Deckard's time was only about twenty of a second short of the best time ever made indoors by an American, Ray Sears of Butler university. Sears was fifth, trailing Floyd Lochner of Norman, Okla., and Joe McCluskey, as well as in the Indiana pair.

The final of the 60-yard invitation sprint was captured by Perrin Walker, lucky Georgia Tech flier, in a duel with Marty Glickman, of Syracuse. Walker was off the mark a bit slowly in the four-man final but overhauled Glickman at the 50-yard mark and won by two feet in 6.4 seconds. The time was one-tenth second slower than each made in trial heats.

Two negroes, Ben Johns and Bulace Peacock, both third and fourth, Oklahoma Baptists' feet, hurdler, Sam Allen, completed his sweep over the high timbers by taking the 60-yard final in 7.6 seconds. Allen was clocked in identical time for each of three winning tests. He was off the mark beautifully in the final and won going away, by two yards, from Ted Day, of Yale, third, and Duane Cullinan, of Illinois, fourth.

Abraham Rosenkrantz, chunky little Michigan Normal runner, out-footed a field of six in the 880-yard race in the good time of 1:55.8. Rosenkrantz set all the pace and won by eight yards from an added starter, Wesley Wallace, Fordham freshman. Wallace came off the turn to pass Lou Burke, Manhattan college star.

Virginia's entry, Robert St. John, was never a contender and finished fifth, fully 35 yards behind the winner.

TIGERS TO FIGHT TWO MATCHES ON WEEK'S PROGRAM

Bengal Battlers Hope To Even Score With Farmerville Team Tuesday

The battling Neville High school Tigers, district boxing champions, have a hard week ahead of them as they tangle with the strong Farmerville Farmers, only team to beat them this season, and the Lafayette High school Lions, who held them to a one-point victory three weeks ago.

Coach Percy Brown takes his Bengals to Farmerville for revenge Tuesday night, meeting Coach Quitman Long's high-powered aggregation in the Farmerville auditorium. On Friday night the Lions of Lafayette High school will be here seeking vengeance for the 6-1-2 to 5-1-2 victory the locals scored over them in January.

Neville has engaged in five dual meets this season, losing only the one with Farmerville, who won, 7 to 6, but the Farmers and the Lions were the toughest Coach Brown's boys have faced this season, and they are expected more trouble this week.

The Bengals will be especially anxious to trim the Farmerville mites. Neville had a record of 17 consecutive victories behind them when they faced the Farmers about two weeks ago, but the Union parish boys battled through them to score a hard-earned victory and end the Tigers' long reign as a team almost unbeatable in dual meets.

The loss to Farmerville has been Neville's last defeat in the past 20 dual meets. Last Friday night the locals scored their most overwhelming victory when they best Baton Rouge High's Bulldogs, 19 to 2, and finished the fights in good shape to undertake the coming week's work.

Coach Long, at Farmerville, has announced that the epidemic of flu that threatened to overcome the Farmers in the past week is about at an end, and he expects his boys to be ready to give the invading Bengals a big reception.

Coach Long also announced that the Marvin Spauld-Horace Clark battle, in the 115-pound class, was being billed in Farmerville as the feature on the card and no doubt it will be one of the best. Clark, Farmerville's state champion in the 105-pound class last season, was unable to meet Spauld because of a hand injury when the Farmers came here, but a now recovered and anxious to renew the feud with Spauld. Spauld was Clark's biggest threat of the district in the 105-pound division last year, and was runner-up to the Union parish boy for the district title. Spauld at present is leading the Neville boxers in points won this season, having won four battles and lost none, and will be anxious to keep up his record Tuesday.

The renewal of the Walter Brady-John Ed Rabun squabble is also being billed as one of the features of the Farmerville card. Brady and Rabun have been tangling in heated bouts ever since Farmerville and Neville began fighting among themselves, and Rabun held the latest decision over the Tiger battler. Brady is capable of reversing the tables, however, and a spectacular fight is expected.

Only one member of the Farmerville team that came here will be missing from Tuesday's program, according to Coach Long. Lawrence Dean, who gave "Shorty" Earl his closest fight of the season, will be missing because of illness and it is probable that the Farmers will not be able to match Earl.

A tentative schedule of bouts has been announced as follows: with the Tigers named first: 74-pounds, Harold Corbett vs. Nick Everett; 80-pounds, E. B. Paddy vs. E. B. Malone; 95-pounds, Elton Brady vs. Dan Albritton; 95-pounds, Guy Miller vs. Leon Andrews; 105-pounds, Anthony Danna or Tony Lasuzzo vs. Mitchell Brasher; 112-pounds, Pat Cole or Talmadge Stout vs. J. C. Williams; 118-pounds, Spauld vs. Clark; 126-pounds, Ernest Pierce vs. Hansford "Red" Holloway; 135-pounds, Vaughan Payne vs. Carl Frazier; 165-pounds, Perry Snyder vs. J. R. Patterson, Jr.; and 175-pounds, Ray Spicer vs. Ed Gillum.

Changes in the lineup of Lafayette fighters in the last two weeks make it almost impossible to say what the card for Friday night will be. Ernest Pierce, Neville's 126-pounder, however, can be expected to be matched with Domingue, who best Pierce at Lafayette, and Ray Spicer can be depended on to face Broussard bettered to a draw in a wild fight at Lafayette.

the country, has the shortest manager in Charlie Drensen and two of the tallest coaches in George Kelly and Tom Sheehan.

Dick Burnett, owner of the Monroe baseball club, is a fishing bug. Who'll deny that he's come to the right place.

NORMAL SHADES WILDCATS, 29-27

Perkins Loops Field Goal In Last Minute To Win For Demon Quintet

ALEXANDRIA, La., Feb. 6.—(AP)—E. D. Perkins, State Normal guard, roped a field goal in the last minute of the game to give the Natchitoches Demons a basketball victory over the Louisiana college Wildcats in Pineville tonight, 29 to 27.

The Cats held the advantage practically throughout the first half, which ended 16 to 11 in their favor. The Pineville cagers then gained an 8-point lead, 19-11, before the visitors began to hit the basket.

Perkins' winning goal was the only score he made in the game. The triumph gave the Demons a clean sweep over the Cats in their 2-game series.

LOYOLA RALLIES TO DEFEAT CHOCTAWS

CLINTON, Miss., Feb. 6.—(AP)—After fighting an even ten minutes in the first half, the Loyola university cagers of New Orleans pulled away from Mississippi college in the second half to win, 37 to 27, here tonight.

The Wolves were leading by only one point at the half time, 15 to 17, but with Peterson hitting the basket with some consistency in the second half the visitors surged to the front and held their lead to the end despite a strong Mississippi college finish.

CLUB CONVENTION DATE SCHEDULED

State Garden Federation Will Hold Meeting Here
May 10-11

An annual convention of the Louisiana State Federation of Women's clubs will be held at Monroe on Monday and Tuesday, February 10-11, Mrs. Elmer Richards, president of the Monroe Garden club, said yesterday afternoon following her return from Alexandria, where she attended a meeting of the board of directors of the federation.

Monroe was selected at the 1936 convention, held at Shreveport, as the convention city for 1937. Mrs. Richards attended the meeting of the federation for the purpose of setting the date of the convention here.

Mrs. F. A. Reynolds of West Monroe, member of the board of directors, attended the meeting with Mrs. Richards.

Besides the setting of the convention date, the directors handled other business which included the acceptance of membership applications from new clubs in six towns and cities of the state.

About 200 delegates are expected to come here for the convention.

Mrs. Richards said that the 3,500 polyantha roses which have been ordered for distribution by the Monroe Garden club are expected to arrive here from Texas within the next several days. Delivery of the roses has been delayed by rains and freezing weather. Orders for all of the roses have been placed with the club. The roses will be used by the persons who ordered them in beautifying home and public building premises.

A regular meeting of the Monroe Garden club will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the American Legion home.

$6,500,000 SPILLWAY PROTECTS NEW ORLEANS AND UPPER LOUISIANA

Shown in this striking aerial view, taken at low-water season, is the $6,500,000 Bonnet Carré spillway located 30 miles upstream from New Orleans. The spillway protects New Orleans by diverting the highest flood waters into Lake Pontchartrain. As the Mississippi rose in the present flood, its waters lapped against the long wall of spillway gates in the center of the photo. Engineers opened them to allow flood waters to pour across the concrete apron and lowlands in the direction indicated by the arrows, thus relieving the pressure on New Orleans levees. Effect of the spillway is also to accelerate the flow of water down the river from the upper reaches, thus reducing the stage of high water and protecting delta region.

CROWDS GET TAGS AT LAST MINUTE

Throng Present Up To Midnight Friday At Motor Vehicle Office

The largest sale of automobile tags in the history of the Motor Vehicle bureau was reported by Fred Hanna, manager, on Saturday, following the ending of the time which tags could be obtained without the payment of a penalty.

The local office, 212 North Second street, was open until midnight on Friday, the final time announced in which to secure the tags, and long lines of applicants thronged the place all day and far into the night.

How many plates were sold since the 1937 sale of tags was initiated last December is not yet known, as a checkup has yet to be made.

The Monroe office is headquarters for many northeast Louisiana parishes and many of the tags are disposed of by mail, obviating the necessity of motorists coming to the office here. All letters mailed throughout the area that bear the mail mark of February 5, together with remittance, will be honored by Mr. Hanna.

With the aid of extra clerks, at times there have been as many as 14 employed in the Motor Vehicle bureau, the large number of people seeking to secure their license plates, were given as a prompt attention as was possible and long delays were obviated.

PUBLIC FORUM

SAFE FROM FLOOD

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to convey to you my feeling of gratitude and appreciation for the concise, masterful and most thorough manner in which you have presented an accurate description of present high water conditions to the people of this community.

I was convinced that it would serve a splendid purpose for you and Mr. Liner as representing the news disseminating agencies of this area, to see for yourselves the actual status of the flood protection works vital to our protection here, and to be afforded an opportunity to discuss all phases of their present strength and adequacy with the men responsible for their proper functioning and maintenance. My desire in this connection has certainly been more than gratified.

You have seen for yourselves the entirely satisfactory and efficient work that guarantees us safety from any water now in prospect, and from almost any reasonable flood that might reach this section of the river.

I am glad indeed that you share my views that under existing conditions, no danger whatever exists in this territory from the prevailing high stages of water in the Mississippi.

You have seen in person the untiring and constant attention and devotion to duty being displayed by Mr. J. W. Summerlin, president of the Texas Basin Levee board, who, incidentally, is always given the 100 per cent cooperation of Messrs. L. C. Nunn, J. S. Wolfe, A. C. Monroe, J. M. Whitley, W. B. Grayson and D. W. Gibson, the splendid group of men who are members of this board.

And always on duty you have found Cy Young, area engineer for the United States engineers here at Monroe, and J. R. Adams, assistant Louisiana state engineer. These two men have only one interest—the protection at all times of the people of this community.

Again thanking you for the great service you have rendered, and with kindest personal regards, I am,
Sincerely yours,
W. L. ETHRIDGE.

SHERIFF'S REPORT FOR MONTH GIVEN

Fifty-five persons were arrested by the Ouachita parish sheriff's department in January, it was shown in a monthly report which had been completed yesterday.

The offense for which the most persons were arrested was larceny of property valued at less than $50. Seven persons were apprehended on that charge. Five persons were arrested on charges of non-support, four were arrested for allegedly breaking and entering in the night, and four were taken into custody for sanity observation.

Offenses lodged against the other arrested persons were: breaking and entering in the day, 4; larceny of property valued at more than $50, 1; hog stealing, 2; cow stealing, 3; automobile theft, 1; assault with a dangerous weapon, 1; wounding less than mayhem, 1; carrying concealed weapon, 1; driving while intoxicated, 1; hit-and-run driving, 1; disturbing the peace, 2; peace bond, 2; material witness, 1; game law violation, 1; juvenile, 1; criminal libel, 1; confidence game, 1; perjury, 2; arrested for other authorities, 3; escapees arrested, 1; suspects, 2.

TO RESUME CLASSES

JENA, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—The LaSalle parish schools will resume classes Tuesday morning after a one-week lay-off given them by Superintendent of Schools J. D. Russell, Jr., after the influenza which has gripped the parish spread so widely that large numbers were unable to attend.

Mr. Russell dismissed the schools at noon last Monday in an effort to prevent the further spreading of the influenza. Over half of Jena High school's 643 students were absent Monday and over 200 had been absent the previous week. The other schools in the parish were suffering large losses also. Inclement weather is thought to be the cause of the epidemic, as there have not been very many days this year that have not been rainy. Not only the school children but the citizens are also affected.

V. F. W. OFFICIAL TO VISIT MONROE

Bernard W. Kearney Will Be Honor Guest In-City On February 20

Bernard W. Kearney, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be the guest of honor of the local Rodney J. Hobbs post on February 20, it was announced by E. H. Miller, post commander, Saturday.

He will be met at Mer Rouge on the morning of that day by a delegation of post officials from Monroe and surrounding towns, and will be escorted to Bastrop, where a breakfast will be served in his honor by the Morehouse V. F. W. post. Following the breakfast he will come to Monroe at 11 a.m. At noon he will be given a luncheon at Hotel Frances by local post members at which city officials of Monroe and West Monroe will be invited guests.

Commander Kearney is a resident of Gloversville, N. Y., where he has served as city judge, district attorney, and has held other high offices. He ranks as one of the most talented and popular leaders that has ever served as head of a national veterans' organization.

A gifted orator whose legal experience of the last 17 years has developed his natural talent for forceful and convincing public speaking, Commander Kearney is an ardent champion of veterans' welfare legislation, especially as it pertains to disabled veterans. Prior to his election as commander-in-chief, Mr. Kearney held the office of senior vice commander-in-chief of the V. F. W. for two successive years, during which period he traveled widely throughout the country, making frequent appearances before V. F. W. units and other groups.

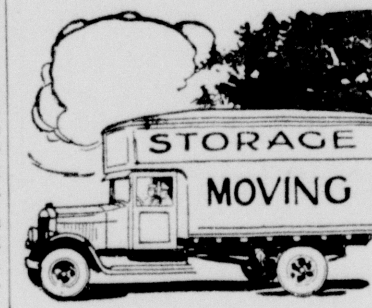

That his views on veteran benefits are a result of personal experience and study, as well as organization

Monroe Residents Proud Of Ancient Trees That Line City's Thoroughfares

Mardi Gras To Be Observed Locally

Much Rivalry Being Manifested In Selection, Of Queen To Reign At Annual Layton Ball

By Eve Bradford

"I've a trust to keep with a white oak tree which is waiting and watching and listening for me," runs an old Yuletide song. In the minds of all Monroe are pictures of beloved trees that send forth vivid green leaves at the first hint of early spring. The willow tree—the mimosa tree that blossoms early in the Layton yard, where in years inspires an al fresco supper—the old oak in the Layton yard, where in years past a "crow's nest" was the rendezvous for younger members of the Layton family and their playmates—trees in the courtyard square where lovers sat in the old days with the moon trickling through the leafy branches—the mulberry tree in the John Sherouse gardens around which their home was built. Not one limb was sacrificed and year after year, with its anchorage in the same spot, it bends gracefully to the storms that pass over it.

The lower limbs of an old oak tree at the Cedars on Riverside sweep the ground but there is a hollow in one big limb high above, almost unseen from below, where children played under the canopy of green. Trees have a personality, character and special meaning to those who have sought their shade, protection and comfort in times of mental stress.

The late Mrs. J. W. Platt, whose hearing became impaired, said one day that she missed mostly the music of the soft night wind in the majestic old tree at the Layton place where she lived for 25 years or more. She said, "One tree in particular was my father confessor. It's calm dignity, faith and trust when great strength and patience were needed, helped me through trying periods."

In the tired minds of so many, many people are pictures of beloved trees to their youth that they would give a deal to see again in reality.

Carnival time usually suggests revelry of masked and costumed merry-makers amid showers of blossoms and confetti under sub-tropical skies but to the younger beau monde of Monroe it means dancing on the Cherokee terrace to a lilting orchestra. Colonial maids in stately satins and powdered wigs will dance the minuet with youths in knee breeches and lace frilled coats. Carol Layton has planned all the costumes to be worn by members of her dancing classes and the result will be most harmonious—no jarring colors, ludicrous or make-shift costumes will mar the beauty of the perfect ensemble. A king and a queen will be elected by popular vote, so naturally a spirit of rivalry is being manifested.

At the Y. M. H. A. Mardi Gras will be celebrated in a maze of confetti by members of the club and their friends. The city streets will also be swarming with maskers, weather permitting, with revelry the keynote of it all.

It is good for the soul to forget the stern things of life—to don a mask and completely lose one's identity. Dull care is pushed into the background the minute our features are lost to the public gaze. This is the reason, no doubt, why the carnival never loses its appeal and people, young and old, frolic and play in gay abandon.

Mundane frugality is definitely passe—new homes, new automobiles, new clothes are now joyously come il faut. The junior Travis Olivers are moving into their new home on Island Drive next week. The early Colonial house stands in the shadow of Paragon plantation where Kitty's mother, the late Sallie Cole Morrison, spent her girlhood days.

The Nathan Gaston's new home in Fairview is one of the duckiest homes imaginable—so shining and new and individual.

One of the most picturesque homes—typical of newlyweds—is the one the Foster Wallaces are occupying next to the handsome big home of the senior Wallaces. Roses and vines clamber over the wall and a giant tree stretches protecting branches over the sloping roof.

"The minutes stretch into hours, the hours stretch into days, the days into months and the months into years." Thus, just like the song, "Poor Butterfly," members of the Monroe Garden club have watched the days stretch into months bringing with them their cherished dream—a state convention in this city. In the flowery month of May garden lovers from every section of the state will flock to our city so it behooves each and every one of us to get the old town ready for inspection. If we all grab a hoe and a shovel and commence now to beautify the corner where we are we will have a city sufficiently beautiful to pass muster and draw forth exclamations of praise from even beauty-conscious Garden club members.

CONSTITUTIONAL SCARF

World events are leaving their stamp on new spring fabrics. Here is the latest thing in scarfs inspired by the 150th anniversary of the signing of the constitution of the United States, which will be celebrated this year. It is a constitution of navy blue silk printed in white with the preamble to the constitution, its articles and amendments. It is worn with a hat of navy blue and white silk taffeta.

Booths Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. John Wilkes Booth, last Wednesday, visualized that happy day, in 1887, just fifty years ago, when he claimed Bonnie Annie M. Hatcher for his bride.

Memories of their wedding day came trooping back when Mr. and Mrs. Booth in the midst of their family, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in this city.

Mrs. Booth, speaking of her early childhood, recalled the day when she and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Hatcher, left their home in Shelby county for a long and perilous journey across the plains of Texas in a covered wagon. It was weeks and weeks before they reached their new home in Sabine parish, as her father, a physician, was detained in a settlement where an epidemic was raging.

Mrs. Booth also spoke of her gallant grandfather, Captain John James Hatcher, who fought in the Battle of Mansfield during the stirring days of the War Between the States.

Mr. Booth, pleasantly reminiscing, spoke of his happy boyhood in Columbus, Ga., where his father, Mr. R. P. Booth, owned a flour mill. He spoke of the crude machinery in comparison with the mechanical perfection of today. The waterfall which supplied the water power for the mill was music to his ears. He dreamed away the golden summer days he spent as a youth on the grassy slopes near his father's mill.

At the age of 19 he married Annie Hatcher. Their wedding brought friends from Shreveport, Mansfield, Center and Shelbyville, Tex. Merry-making and dancing continued through the night.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth have enjoyed a long and happy life together and feel that the best is yet to be. In the midst of their family, seven in number, they find life fuller and happier with the passing years.

Present to shower the celebrants with well wishes and to enjoy the festivities in connection with their parent's golden wedding anniversary were: William Sanders Booth, George Thomas Booth of Monroe, Marlow O. Booth of Rodessa, La., John W. Booth of Greenville, Miss., Miss Margaret E. Booth of Shreveport, Mrs. John Powell Jennings and Mr. Henry Eugene Booth of Monroe.

A distinct feature of the golden wedding anniversary was the cutting of a handsome cake, an exact replica of the one cut 50 years ago by the bride and groom and all the wedding guests. Telegrams of a congratulatory nature and gifts of flowers were showered upon the happy celebrants.

A distinct feature of the golden wedding anniversary was the cutting of a handsome cake, an exact replica of the one cut 50 years ago by the bride and groom and all the wedding guests. Telegrams of a congratulatory nature and gifts of flowers were showered upon the happy celebrants.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth have enjoyed a long and happy life together and feel that the best is yet to be. In the midst of their family, seven in number, they find life fuller and happier with the passing years.

Present to shower the celebrants with well wishes and to enjoy the festivities in connection with their parent's golden wedding anniversary were: William Sanders Booth, George Thomas Booth of Monroe, Marlow O. Booth of Rodessa, La., John W. Booth of Greenville, Miss., Miss Margaret E. Booth of Shreveport, Mrs. John Powell Jennings and Mr. Henry Eugene Booth of Monroe.

'Dew On The Grass' Reviewed Before Club

"Dew on the Grass," by Ellwood Lewis, was delightfully reviewed by Mrs. E. R. Strahan, at the regular meeting of the Review club with Mrs. Chester Nenney, in the absence of Mrs. E. R. Yancey, program leader of the afternoon.

She said in part: "There is so much real beauty in this recollection of a happy childhood that I found myself regretting what seemed to me a too conscious admission of its charm—and too much recognition of the unusual qualities of the children concerned."

"There are four children, Della, Lucy, Maurice and Miriam, living at Pengarth. Their surroundings are perfect and romantic. Beyond the tangle of buildings were orchards, woods, hay fields and meadows, all lying ready for the long free days when the children from the rectory added their inventions to that of the children of Pengarth."

"The Pengarth children are not essentially different from others in the things they do and picture. They are fortunate in doing them in an ideal setting, and in their freedom from artificial restraints."

"Dew on the Grass" will probably not interest children in the least; nor is it intended to. Its artful simplicity and its words, which have the sweetness of apples and the tang of marigolds, cannot fail to delight most adult readers."

Mrs. T. C. Rowland gave a most interesting and most instructive talk on "Parliamentary Law."

$380.71 Netted From Local Birthday Ball

Members Of Junior Charity League Gather Saturday To Discuss Success Of Annual Dance

Always in the ascendancy here, members of the Junior Charity League gathered for breath after their successful exploits last week and counted up their total receipts.

Over the luncheon table yesterday in the Cameo room of the Virginia hotel, they discussed their finances and found the net proceeds from the President's Birthday ball to be $380.71. So many requests have been made for a financial report on the ball that the chairman, Mrs. Bruce Trousseau, submits the following incomplete report:

- Expenses
- 1. Cherokee terrace orchestra $125.00
 - 2. Incidental expenses 6.79

Total expense $131.79

Receipts

- 1. Birthday greetings $24.50
- 2. Ticket sale 483.00

Total receipts $507.50

Expense 131.79

Net proceeds $380.71

Mrs. Nathan Gaston, the new president, presided at the meeting yesterday.

Members present were Mrs. J. B. Dawkins, Mrs. J. G. Snelling, Mrs. Victor Davis, Mrs. Walter Kellogg, Miss Gertrude Hart, Miss Constance McReynolds, Mrs. H. A. Mouk, Mrs. H. F. Madison, Mrs. Gordon Cummings, Mrs. John Wooten, Miss Adeline Sandel, Miss Sarah Beth Farmer, Mrs. C. P. Jarrell, Mrs. B. A. Trousseau, Jr., Mrs. Nathan Gaston, Mrs. F. B. Winberry, Mrs. Elliott Thompson, Mrs. Bernard Biedenhorn, Mrs. Wharton Brown, Miss Eleanor Faulk, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, Mrs. Thomas Frazer, Mrs. Theodore Allen, Mrs. Granville Tierney, Mrs. Melville Vaughan, Mrs. George Goodwin, Miss Ann Platt.

An all fresco supper party brought a few congenials together with Miss Burdie Franks, Miss Beatrice Brown and Miss Frances Young the hostesses and complimentary to Misses Billie and Wandalee Myles of Houston, Tex.

Enjoying this outing in addition to the guests of honor, were Lillian Lejeune, Annie and Charlie Malone, Gertrude Brown, Katherine Young, Virginia and Francis Young, Helen Anders, Vadie Franks, Maxine Blazer, Gladys Honeycutt, Hiawatha Clinton, Lee Roy Robins, Red Fuller, Clinton Smith, J. R. and Marguerite Franks, Billie Brown and Arthur Humble.

The regular meeting of the ladies' auxiliary, Rodney J. Hobbs post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be held Thursday night at the club rooms on DeSiard street.

Members are urged to attend, as there will be business of importance. President Morrow announced that committees will be appointed to work with committees of the post should an emergency in the flood situation arise.

Nine members of the Hobbs auxiliary motored to Bastrop Thursday night, where they attended the regular meeting of the auxiliary to Boone McDowell post. Those making the trip were President Lena M. Morrow, Mrs. Emma Quinn, Mrs. Pearl Madden, Mrs. Zola B. Smith, Mrs. Althea Valley, Mrs. Sletty B. Leonard, Mrs. Lillian Kenny, Mrs. Christine Brown and Mrs. Aline B. Hunt.

Mrs. T. L. Works entertained members of her bridge club at her home on the west side.

Following the interesting games, gifts for high score were presented to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hinton and Mrs. Frank Fox.

A delicious supper course was served at the card tables.

Founders' Day Observance Planned

An executive committee meeting of the Neville High school Parent-Teacher association was held last Monday afternoon at the school. Plans for Founders' day, which will be observed the coming Monday afternoon at the school, were discussed. Mrs. H. P. Felix has been named chairman of the tea and candle lighting ceremony which will be conducted at that time.

Safety stickers were distributed among the members to be placed on the windshields of their cars in co-operation with the safety observance stressed by the city.

A committee was appointed by Mrs. W. H. Armstrong for the purpose of conferring with the authorities relative to putting on an extra bus for the pupils of the high school in the afternoon. It was pointed out that the one bus now being used is not large enough for all the students, making it unsafe for both the passengers and the driver.

Appointed on this committee were Mrs. Louis Masur, Mrs. William Mintz and Mrs. L. F. Grigsby.

Mrs. Mintz reported that a total of $91.52 had been cleared at the recent supper and marionette show given by the organization.

Members of the executive committee who were present at this meeting were Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Mrs. Louis Masur, Mrs. H. P. Felix, Mrs. Minnie Ruffin, Mrs. William Mintz, Mrs. L. F. Grigsby, Mrs. S. Beasley and Mrs. S. C. Wimshis.

Tea Planned By Neville P.-T. A.

Members of the Neville Parent-Teacher association will observe Founders' day Monday afternoon at the school with a tea and special program.

Mrs. H. P. Felix, chairman of the program, announced that in addition to the talk to be made by Mrs. D. C. Shattuck on "Forty Years of Progress," a birthday cake adorned with 42 candles will be an interesting feature of the affair.

The candle lighting ceremony will be conducted by Mrs. H. P. Felix, with the assistance of a group of high school girls.

After the program an informal social hour will be held in the honor society room, where Mrs. E. P. Cudd, president of the Twin City P.-T. A. council, and Mrs. Carl Couch, fifth district P.-T. A. chairman, will pour tea.

Members of the executive committee will be hostesses on this occasion.

Spaghetti Supper Planned By P.-T. A.

Plans are being made by the Barkdull-Faulk P.-T. A. for an Italian spaghetti supper to be served on the night of February 13 from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m., at the building formerly occupied by Hemp's cafeteria, at the corner of DeSiard and Grand streets. The supper will be given for the benefit of underprivileged children and the public is cordially invited to attend.

P.-T. A. Will Give Safety Poster Prize

Mrs. R. E. Wilson, president of the Crosley P.-T. A. in West Monroe, has announced that the fifth district group will award a prize to the grammar school student who prepares the best poster carrying out the "safety" idea. Safety is the state P.-T. A. project for the year and it is desired that this contest add stimulus to the project.

There will also be a local prize given by the Crosley P.-T. A. to the student in Crosley school submitting the best poster. The winning poster will be sent to state P.-T. A. headquarters not later than February 15 and will be entered with the other posters from the various schools of the fifth district. Mrs. B. A. McKenzie is safety chairman for Crosley school.

Lida Benton School P.-T. A. Meeting

The Mothers' P.-T. A. Choral club held its regular weekly meeting on February 3 at the home of Mrs. Ben Stern, 1904 South Grand street.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Keller, and minutes of the last meeting read and approved.

The cradle song was selected for presentation at the Founders' day program at Barkdull-Faulk school, February 11.

The meeting closed with the serving of refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Bill Watson, 110 Carolina street.

Council To Sponsor Amateur Hour Again

At the monthly meeting of the Twin City P.-T. A. council, held February 4 at the courthouse, plans were made to sponsor an amateur hour again this year. This entertainment, representing talent from all schools of Monroe and West Monroe and the cities at large, will be held during the month of March. The exact date will be announced later.

Mrs. King Hunt was named chairman of the amateur hour, and the following women appointed to assist: Mrs. Homer Chilton, Mrs. Eulalia McCoy, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Mrs. Nell Grigsby, Mrs. R. L. McHenry, Mrs. Church, Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. W. M. King, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. Rhes McCook, Mrs. R. G. Stewart, Mrs. N. N. Colburn, Mrs. Harry Stein, Miss Madie Moore, Mrs. K. D. Hays, Mrs. Ed Stinson, Mrs. R. E. Wilson, Mrs. Peter Brooks, Mrs. E. E. Eaves, Mrs. Lizzie Morris, Mrs. Paul Keller, Mrs. Charles Reid, Mrs. W. J. Vincent, Miss Eloise Cann, Mrs. John Calhoun, Mrs. John Young and Mrs. Carl Riggins.

Members of the council were urged to send delegates to the Founders' day celebration to be held February 11-12 in New Orleans, Louisiana, and Mississippi will jointly commemorate the founding of the P.-T. A. 40 years ago. On February 22, in New Orleans, there will be a meeting of the parent-teacher section at the department of superintendence convention.

The main feature of the meeting will be the panel discussion led by Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, president of the national congress. Other notables from various sections of the United States will also have part on the program.

In accordance with the extensive safety program of the P.-T. A., the council voted to sponsor safety patrols in all schools of the Twin Cities.

Council members were reminded to begin plans for their summer round-ups.

Dr. Caroline Tiebout will speak at the Central Grammar school Thursday, February 11, at 2 p.m. All parents are especially urged to hear Dr. Tiebout.

Miss Annette Duchene of Baton Rouge will give one of her series of lectures on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock and evening at 7:30, at the Lotus club.

The subject for the day, "The Theater," promises to be unusually entertaining as Miss Duchene is well versed on this particular subject.

State Policeman Talks Before P.-T. A.

CLAY, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Morton J. Kavanaugh, member of the state police department, delivered an address on "Safety" at the regular meeting of the Clay-Ansley P.-T. A. Following the address, a committee was appointed by Mrs. John H. Kendall, presiding officer, consisting of Professor McBride, Mrs. Riley Ham and Miss Clara Mae Kemp, to outline a safety program.

Safety Furthered By Neville P.-T. A.

Members of the Neville High school Parent-Teacher association have received a consignment of safety stickers for automobiles, which all members are displaying on the windshields of their cars.

The association is co-operating with the city in every way possible in the program for the promotion of safety, which is being stressed in Monroe by city officials.

J. W. Rohr is the chairman of the safety committee of the Neville P.-T. A. and every effort possible is being exerted in arousing the public to a hundred per cent co-operation in the furtherance of safety in all its phases.

It is interesting to note that the state department of education now requires at least one lesson of 25 minutes per week allotted to health and physical education for safety education in both elementary and high schools. This instruction will continue during the entire year and during all ensuing years until specific instructions of a different nature are given.

Special Program Given By P.-T. A.

HARRISONBURG, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—The Enterprise P.-T. A. gave away a quilt at a meeting held in the home economics cottage at the Enterprise school. Members of the association donated a number of cakes, which were sold for the benefit of the Enterprise P.-T. A. Assembly singing was led by Miss M. Ridley, after which refreshments were served to those present. Mrs. E. D. Hooter, president, was in charge of the meeting.

Sterlington P.-T. A. To Meet February 11

STERLINGTON, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—The A. L. Smith school Parent-Teacher association will meet at the school here February 11. The gathering will be featured by a Founders' day program.

Silver Tea Planned By Hodge P.-T. A.

JONESBORO, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—A silver tea will be given February 11, by the Hodge Parent-Teacher organization in celebration of Founders' day. The celebration will take place in the school auditorium, and invitations have been issued to all members of both the Jonesboro and Hodge organizations.

These two organizations have heretofore sponsored the giving of hot soup to children who come in from the distant truck routes and are compelled to eat cold lunches. Those children who are undernourished are especially looked after and given sufficient nourishment for the day.

The health and recreation of the children, and even the aesthetic values involved in the beautification of school yards and grounds, have been the outstanding accomplishment of these organizations for the three schools in Hodge and Jonesboro for the last several years.

P.-T. A. Observes Founders' Day

FERRIDAY, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Founders' day was observed Monday by the Ferriday High school Parent-Teacher association at the auditorium of the local high school. Mrs. John Schuchs and Mrs. Bruce T. Wilgus were hostesses. Mrs. Schuchs baked a large birthday cake with 40 candles, as it was the 40th birthday of the national organization, and more than 40 members were present for the birthday party.

Miss Sarah I. Jones, parish librarian, Rev. E. C. Dufresne, Methodist pastor, and Mrs. Richard Porter, president of the P.-T. A., were on the program. Mrs. Charles A. Campbell sang and a well balanced program was presented in honor of the day.

Mrs. and Mrs. James Odum of Macon, Ga., former residents of this city, announce the arrival of a daughter, Jimmie Marie, in their home January 7.

Arrangements Made For Federated Garden Clubs' Convention In Monroe

Organization Will Meet In City In May

Mrs. Elmer Richards And Mrs. F. A. Reynolds Take Part In Discussions At Alexandria

In the flowery month of May, members of the Louisiana Federated Garden clubs, will flock to Monroe for annual state convention.

Preliminary plans for the convention were made in Alexandria last week with Mrs. Elmer Richards, president of the Monroe club, and Mrs. F. A. Reynolds, state officer, representing this city.

Monroe is at the height of its beauty during the month of May. It is then the crepe myrtle trees encircle the city with flaming color and magnolia blossoms send forth their haunting fragrance. Gardens are flourishing and pools are limpid and clear.

All this beauty that comes to us in the month of May did not just happen, however. It is all the result of hard work, careful planning and correct planting. Your garden can be a place of beauty when the state garden club meets in this city if you start now to beautify.

Mrs. Richards gives some valuable advice and especially in the matter of color combinations. She suggests that tall pink snapdragons be used in conjunction with light pink verbena. A charming combination may be made by putting some pink petunias, also, between the pink asters so as to have a pink bouquet in this spot all summer. The hardy ageratum, that plant which will grow in sun or shade, comes into bloom early in the spring to help out the little spots of loveliness one is attempting to keep all season and should be combined with a few late blooming dark red asters or some deep red snapdragons to make an unusual and distinct color contrast.

The tall growing phlox brings gaiety in many colors to the August garden but since the leaves on its lower stems are sure to have turned brown, they need to be covered by convenient lower growing plants. The annual Drummondii phlox which has the same flowerlet of the hardy phlox makes the most delightful planting for this place. These annuals grow about fifteen inches tall and can be had in separate colors to use with the different shades of the hardy, such as the violet one to plant with the violet Mercier, hardy phlox, the white annual to plant with the fascinating deep red Firebrand and shades of pink with white eyes or solid pink annuals to plant with the hardy Rheinlanders or the Shuberters. A few gladioli can be set among this group to help out the picture.

The purples and blues come in many flowers, too often shading from one to the other, but a very clear blue group can be made by starting with blue hyacinths and blue grape hyacinths and the forget-me-nots. Then the blue annual larkspur, which has been planted in September, will follow in. The dainty blue flax will put its color into the morning glory so we need the perennial forget-me-not to fill its place later in the day and this can have the darker blue of annual lobelia or ageratum as a background and the tall growing Chinese forget-me-not will toss its darker blue baby flowers all summer high above the others.

Of course the blue corner will not be complete without some tall Mal-donna blue delphinium and some low growing Chinese delphinium which give a much darker blue flower. These delphinium should have the soil around them in a 3-inch circle covered with a 1-4-inch covering of tobacco dust and over this some coal ashes or very little pieces of rock or grit put up near to the stems to keep the water from settling near its center. The two or three bottom leaves should be picked off if they touch the soil. Plant delphinium, so wanted by everyone and so hard to keep, in a good soil but not too rich. When giving them any extra food remember the rule, "a little and often," but never let the fertilizer touch the stem of the plants.

Another secret of getting strong delphinium is to buy small plants and let them get their roots well established before their flower stalks form. When they do not like to be moved, when picking the tall hybrids be sure to leave eight inches of stalk on the plant so the water, which will get into this hollow stem, will not reach the roots. Some experts advise sticking some dirt onto this cut stem to keep out the waters.

The regular monthly meeting of the Monroe branch of the American Association of University Women, scheduled for Wednesday night, has been postponed until the following Wednesday, February 17, when the members will meet with Mrs. Fred Williamson at her home, 2000 Riverside drive.

Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Collins and Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Underwood are enjoying the week-end in Lake Providence as the guests of Judge and Mrs. F. X. Ramsdell.

Mrs. Kate O'Neill has returned from New York City, where she spent two weeks visiting the market and enjoying the shops and the theaters.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee James are now established in their new home on North Second and Rochelle and will be glad to have their friends call.

Considerable interest is manifested in this city over the announcement of the engagement and forthcoming marriage of Miss Mary Elise Skye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Skye of Alexandria, and Richard W. Maycock of Salt Lake City, Utah, and San Juan, Porto Rico, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Maycock of Salt Lake City.

Miss Skye is a graduate of the Bolton High school, has a degree from Louisiana State university and an M. A. from Columbia university. She has been for the past two seasons physical director in the Blanche Kellogg School for Girls in San Juan.

Mr. Maycock is a graduate of Washington and Lee university and holds a responsible government position in Porto Rico.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wilds and daughter, Miss Maryanne Wilds, and Miss Libby Haynes motored to Mobile, Ala., to spend the week-end with C. E. Wilds, Jr., a student at Springhill college, and incidentally to enjoy the Mobile carnival season.

Eiffel Tower, Airplanes, Bow Ties Inspire 1937 Designs

INFLUENCE FROM PARIS

As modern as the New Year is this advance spring silk print inspired by the Paris exposition of 1937. Its design, in green and beige tones, depicts the Eiffel tower and exposition buildings. The bag and belt worn with the short sleeved frock are of green suede.

FROM THE SKY

A pattern of multi-colored airplanes covers this dark blue bolero frock. The blouse is red, the tasseled hat dark blue. The print designs are by Schiaparelli and all the dresses made by American designers.

FORMALITY—ON SILK

The black and white bow ties the modern Beau Brummel wears at night furnish the pattern for a deep gray silk crepe frock. White leather makes the bows which accent the belt and high neckline of the bodice. The same leather makes the bag. The hat is white straw.

institutions and the will to live and let live, to bear and forbear? Sunday evening the thoughts of the worshippers will be turned toward security. The passage of Scripture is 1 Peter 1:5. To be conscious of God, to be convinced He is able to keep us, to believe in His affection, is to live and live splendidly. Your presence will mean much to this worship period. The adults of the congregation are invited to affiliate with the Bible classes of their choice. With your enrollment, the Sunday school will go far toward the attendance goal.

GORDON AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH

J. M. Alford, Pastor

The usual Sunday services will be held at Gordon Avenue Methodist church. Church school at 9:45 a.m., E. K. Reeves, general superintendent. Communion of the Lord's Supper will be observed following a discourse by the pastor at 11 a.m. All young people's services at 6:30 p.m. Evening worship at 7:30 o'clock. Special songs and good music. Sermon subject: "Killing Lions."

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

St. John and Oak Streets
Crayton S. Brooks, Minister

Sunday is "Youth Day" at the First Christian church. The Boy Scouts are special guests at the morning service. About 40 scouts with one or two of their leaders are expected and the address will be concerning this remarkable movement. It is a Boy Scout week and therefore Boy Scout Sunday. The Communion service at 11:15 a.m. closes the morning worship. The Sunday school begins at 9:45 a.m. with the beginners in charge of the brief devotional, led by Mrs. E. H. Williamson and Mrs. Crayton S. Brooks. "Youth on the March" will be the theme of a symposium given at 7:30 p.m. by eight young men, assisted by the minister. Under the head of Christian education, the young men will bring a report concerning the following schools: Minnesota Bible university, St. Paul; Cincinnati Bible seminary; Northwest Bible college, Eugene, Oreg.; Johnson Bible college, Kimberlin Heights, Tenn.; College of Religion, Butler university, Indianapolis; Manhattan Bible college, Manhattan, Kan.; Pacific Bible seminary, Long Beach, Calif.; Christian Normal institute, Grayson, Ky. Materialism, atheism, modernism, militarism, communism, nationalism, crime, intemperance and Christian education will all be presented in the picture.

At 11 a.m., the Twin City quartet will sing two numbers. This organization is composed of Mr. Garland May, baritone; Mr. Harlan Auerette, tenor; Mr. Curtis Shell, bass; Miss Sammie Love Sistrunk, alto, and Miss Carrie Smith, pianist.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH

Jackson at Wood Street
W. C. Scott, Pastor

"Draw nigh unto God and He will draw nigh unto you." Let us draw nigh unto God on this, His day and worship Him in His holy temple. This being the first Sunday of the month, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed. Evening services are held at 7:15. You are cordially invited to worship with us. Church school classes begin promptly at 9:30 a.m. in the children's division each Sunday, and 9:45 a.m. in all other departments. Join your class on Sunday. The Methodist Men's club will hold its monthly meeting Monday evening at 6:45. Supper will be served and the study of the book, "A Steward in the Methodist Church," begun. Mr. W. B. Clarke will lead the discussion. Immediately following the club meeting, the board of stewards will hold their monthly business meeting. The Woman's Missionary society will meet in circles Tuesday at 3 p.m. Meeting places of the various circles will be found in the calendar of the daily paper. The local board of Christian education will meet Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the church office.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Grammont and St. John Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor

Continuing his series of morning messages on "The Pre-Eminence of Christ," the pastor will preach on "Christ As Shepherd." The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Black, will offer "The Love of the Saviour" (Rosemont-Bottom). Sunday school will meet in all departments at 9:45 a.m., the B. T. U., at 6:10 p.m. The pastor's subject for the evening message will be "Ye Must Be Born Again," or "The Doctrine of Regeneration." A male quartet, composed of Messrs. Black, Courtney, Gausshell and Gerald, will sing a special number. The public is cordially invited to attend all services. Sunday has been designated as Baptist Hundred Thousand club day, and the pastor will make a brief explanation of this movement and urge our people to join. It is also cash day for the building fund.

GRACE CHURCH

Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

The days of bodily exercise are at hand; therefore, in the service for this Sunday, called Quinquagesima, we are reminded of the absolute nothingness both of faith and works, without that love which is the fulfilling of the law. The collect for this day is modern in form, but in substance is the word of God Himself. The epistle is the rich mine from which the collect was brought out. If the collect requires any proof, you have it in the building fund.

Historic Treasures Of Hodge Resident Rival Those Of Old Natchez Homes

Mrs. Lila Dickson Owns Prized Pieces

One Forgets Present Day Life Upon Entering House Filled With Relics Of By-Gone Times

Rivalling in beauty the historic treasures of Natchez is the magnificent collection of antiques at our very door. The home of Mrs. Lila Dickson of Hodge is a veritable treasure trove—brimming with hand-carved mahogany and rosewood, beautifully etched crystal, tin and milk glassware, dating back to revolutionary days.

When one steps over the wide threshold of the Dickson home one leaves behind the prosaic life of today and enters immediately into an atmosphere of other days. So thin is the gossamer veil separating the south of yesterday and the south of today, one has only to enter one of these old colonial homes to find that the antique, priceless paintings and rare objects d'art, stand as mute testimonials of a glorious and exciting past in the history of the country.

Redolent with glamorous memories of long ago, the Dickson home attracts visitors from every section of the state.

Thinking music from a beautifully carved Swiss rosewood music box greets the ear when the wide door with shining brass knockers is opened to visitors. Rainbow colors fall on rare old tapestries and rugs mellowed with age, from the fan light above the door and the swaying prisms of the chandelier overhead.

An old fashioned black walnut sofa, heavily carved with grape clusters, and upholstered in deep green fills the middle wall space and above this sofa hangs a French tapestry of intricate design. On either side of the sofa are two black walnut marble top tables, holding the pair of Chelsea figures that Mrs. Dickson ranks among her prize possessions.

These figures, one on each table, are a courtesier and a lady, dressed in eighteenth century court fashion and at the Vienna exposition of 1873 the grand prize was awarded these figures for the superb artistry in the intricate carving of these statues.

Across from this beautiful group is a rosewood marble top etagere, the shelves filled with bric-a-brac and gold encrusted Venetian glass. One of the loveliest pieces on the etagere is a crystal carv in the daisy and button pattern and on the small gold border at the back of the tray is a miniature of the famous Louisa of Prussia.

Designed on smaller and daintier lines an etagere is fashioned after a side board and at the Natchez pilgrimage the old mansions proudly called one's attention to these prize pieces of furniture. In Mrs. Dickson's collection there are several etageres of which she is justly proud.

In the curio cabinet, filled with blue and amber daisy and button glass slippers and hats, is a little blue jeweled snuff box set with a perfect cameo. On top of the curio cabinet are a pair of dull pink Sevres rose jars decorated with inlaid porcelain miniatures.

Opposite the curio cabinet is a small wall rack of cherry wood displaying French figurines and a pair of tall white and gold French vases while the shelves of the tall glass paneled black walnut cabinet at the back of the hall are filled with a rare collection of valuable copper luster ware and rose satin glassware.

On top of this cabinet is a large hollow hull ship model, made by a sea captain at Bath, Me., a famous copy of the "America," a famous ship built at the Bath shipyards.

The severe white colonial mantle over the fireplace in the drawing room has a set of French Bisque figurines and a pair of blue and gold French vases. A valuable set of colonial andirons and a brass wood basket are grouped at the fireplace and placed on the hearth is an Early American copper teapot, swinging over a spirit lamp.

Before the three windows at the end of the room is one of the rarest pieces of furniture in Mrs. Dickson's collection, an elaborately carved rosewood table with a pink marble top. Pink marble is seldom seen and this table is the only one Mrs. Dickson has ever been able to find.

On this table are another set of lovely Bisque figures and one of the outstanding pieces in Mrs. Dickson's collection of vases and urns is a large

CHAPTER VIII

In the entrance hall Valeria raised her lips for Peter's kiss. "Darling, I'm not letting you stay. I've simply got to get some sleep. You know I'm on that Junior league ticket sale. So you'll have to rush along."

"I was going anyway," Peter said. "You forget I'm a working man. It's after 10 o'clock."

"I do forget," Valeria answered, "because there's no reason why you should be."

Peter said nothing. He and Valeria had been over this same ground so many times. She couldn't see that a man shouldn't be living on his back and do nothing, satisfied to sit back and let the world go by.

"Quixotic," Valeria had called him. Well, she wasn't really mature yet. Twenty-two years of being babied. He fought down the impatience he always felt when the question of continuing his work—the work for which he had been trained and about which he dreamed—came up between them.

His only ally was his grandfather, who believed in men working. That was because he, himself, had worked hard all his life until the last few years. He had built his vast fortune by hard work.

All the other members of the Kendall family were on Valeria's side. "Valeria's right," his mother would say. "It's absurd to wait until you finish the Willard job before you marry. You have plenty of money of your own."

Everyone agreed that it was foolish to wait until he completed his first big architectural job—the Willard building—before he and Valeria married. Peter wanted every stone in place and the last finishing touch put to the interior before he sailed on his six months' tour of Europe he and Valeria had planned for their wedding trip.

Valeria didn't want to wait to be married, yet she was unwilling to compromise by taking a brief trip to Florida as a honeymoon and then sailing for Europe after the work was completed. She had decided that if Peter were going to be stubborn, she would be stubborn too. She refused to announce the engagement.

She had the feeling that she was punishing him. Moreover, a girl's good time was certainly slowed up after her engagement was known. Lots of the men who were the most fun dropped off.

Valeria waited until she heard Peter's car moving off. Then she crossed the living room and switched on the light in the sun parlor. A man who had been lying on the lounge got to his feet.

"Forty minutes late. I was about to walk out on you."

"I'm terribly sorry, Dirk, please—I'm punished!" She broke from his grasp and ran into her room. She was slipping out of the white crepe and getting into a flame-colored child when her aunt entered the room. The cliffon was practically backless and closely fitted. Valeria remembered the look in Dirk Van Balen's eyes when she had worn the dress last.

They may play their part. As to the young bandmen, if they go into industrial work they may find their place in one of the industrial bands—a rapidly growing field. Or, perhaps, a lodge band may be their musical outlet in social life.

"Irrespective, however, of this larger group activity, the situation will not entirely be relieved until the music of their children is their own. For the decline of family music-making we can not entirely blame either machine-made music or the distractions of modern life. The parents themselves are to a great extent responsible. In the past generation it was generally the wife who represented the musical inclinations of the family, music then being considered something for women only. Nowadays, however, even though the husband may have become interested in music through the song-fests at the noonday luncheon club, the wife in many cases still relinquishes her musical aspirations after marriage because of the demands of family duties. Fortunately, the interest of the parents in the school music work of their children is today creating a condition most auspicious for a renaissance of home music."

"What with the mother's reawakened musical activity and with the father's newly created enthusiasm for music, there is set up a very happy relationship for linking the two generations in spontaneous family music. This may include not only the standard vocal music and the chamber instrumentalists will perform with their parents but the more informal light music of the day, in the composition of which America certainly leads the world. In all of this home music the household's piano plays an essential role—whether the music be that of the masters or the current tunes from Broadway and Hollywood. It seems to me that in these days we too greatly overlook the value of the piano as a social center in the home, thinking of it solely as an instrument of the concert hall or the musical salon. It is no less popular than before as a rallying place for those fond of music as a form of social relaxation. There are some moods in family life in which concentration necessary for the enjoyment of a 'Moonlight Sonata' is present but there are other moods for which the close-harmony singing of some favorite song is just what the doctor ordered. In other words, the well-rounded person is the one who enjoys all kinds of attractive music—each in its place. It is, I believe, upon this same basis that our future development of home and community music will successfully give America its voice."

"Darling," Valeria said, "I'm not letting you stay."

"Valeria! Where are you going? It's perfectly shameless, having late dates after Peter leaves."

"Aunt Louise," Valeria spoke coldly, "will you never realize I'm old enough to take care of myself?"

"I don't know whether you are or not. You're running a big risk of losing Peter by playing around so much with Dirk."

"What do you suggest?" Valeria turned from the mirror, facing her aunt with hostile eyes. "Do you think I should meet Dirk openly?"

"Not if you're in your right mind." "That's what I thought, Dirk. You suppose Peter would like to go on a party at Dirk's apartment—a party that probably will be breaking up about the time Peter's coffee begins percolating?"

Her aunt surveyed her, wearily. "Who will be there?" "The Forrest Bernts, the Livingstons, Grace Hamill, Fred Lancaster, Dudley Fulton, Peg Walters, Dirk and I."

"A fine lot," her aunt said scornfully. "Do you think the Kendalls would countenance such people?"

"What I do before I'm a Kendall is my own affair." "You'll probably never be one," her aunt declared darkly. "What if Millicent hears something?"

"It isn't likely. If she does, she wouldn't tattle. Millicent likes a good time herself. Be a darling, Auntie. Don't talk as though you were a hundred."

"I feel older—worrying so." "Don't wait up for me, darling." "Don't worry. I'm going to bed." The older woman turned as she reached the door, "Valeria, if you'd only marry Peter! Long engagements are fatal."

"It won't be long now. My building is nearly finished," Valeria was gone in a sudden whirl, leaving behind the fragrance of rare and expensive perfume.

Mrs. Wainwright leaned back in the wing chair. She had been too easy with the child. There wasn't a doubt in the world that her niece was outrageously spoiled, arrogant and reckless. The lengths the young people went to in these days! Nothing seemed to matter to them except being found out.

Valeria was crazy, running such a risk, going about with Dirk Van Balen who was notorious for his recklessness, his drinking and gambling. Perhaps Peter Kendall was a little too straight-laced. No doubt he inherited it from his grandfather, whose keen eyes under their bushy brows had always made her uncomfortable.

Mrs. Wainwright made her way slowly to bed. . . . Valeria slipped out of her evening wrap and into Dirk's arms. After a long moment she asked, "Where are the others?"

"They'll be along presently. What do we care?" "I care. I can't afford to be careless."

"Neither can I. You don't suppose my reputation would be whitewashed by being seen about with you?" Valeria laughed through her eyes met and held in amusement. They understood each other, saw through each other, but that did not lessen the dangerous attraction each held for the other.

She turned, approving her surroundings—the fire blazing in the stone fireplace, the ivory paneled walls, the irregular pattern of the floor, forming squares and triangles of red and black, the rich red damask at the windows. There were cozy nooks piled with cushions in brilliant modernistic pattern, and charming furniture—old and new. Through the wide doorway Valeria could see the dining room with its sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres had been placed.

Presently, she knew, Kirk's discreet, soft-voiced Chinese servant would appear with excellently blended drinks and ruby-colored wine glasses.

Lying back in her chair, she approached Dirk with half-closed eyes. He was not good-looking. His dark eyes were too small. His features were equiline. He looked very neat on a tennis court, but she could never picture him playing football or pulling a college boat crew, as Peter had.

Dirk's finisher opened the door and

A salad course was served after the games to Mrs. Mason Spencer, Mrs. Horace Lee, Mrs. Henry Sevier, Mrs. John Sevier, Mrs. B. P. Folk, Mrs. J. A. Gilbert, Mrs. W. S. Craig and Mrs. Davis Whitfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis Whitfield were hosts to the Friday Night club, entertaining with a supper-bridge. Mrs. R. R. Spigener and Mr. Whitfield were the recipients of the high score awards. Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hurd, Dr. and Mrs. J. Roy Medlin, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Spigener, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Fuller and Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Smith.

The regular business meeting of the Baptist Missionary society took place at the church, with an unusually large attendance. The members of circle No. 2, under the leadership of Mrs. H. B. Day, presented the missionary program, with Mrs. W. C. Purdy, Mrs.

Make This Charming Style

If you're the sort of person who really likes to be first with the new, you'll want to make up this enticing little afternoon frock and set the fashion for daytime wear in your "set." All who see it will have nothing but praise for its high neckline that's caught together with a gay contrasting ribbon, and for an uprisings skirt and demure sleeves (wide at the shoulders) that puff so gracefully. You'll step out gaily to parties in a flared hemline that's in the latest fashion, and full enough to permit the freest stride. Making Pattern 4270 proves real fun, for it's such a simple frock, easily stitched up and finished in a jiffy. Fancy how lovely it would be in dainty flower scattered crepe, taffeta, or a heavy sheer of soft color.

Pattern 4270 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 16 takes 31-2 yards 39-inch fabric.

J. L. Watts and Mrs. Watson McDonald giving talks and Mrs. L. Westmoreland conducting the devotional. Mrs. V. J. Colligan rendered a vocal solo, "The Holy City," and Mrs. Clarence Crow gave an interesting report of the association meeting in Forest. Mrs. Albert Sevier presided over the business session.

The Night Bridge club enjoyed a pleasant meeting with Miss Bessie Lord as hostess. The prize was won by Miss Lucille Reiber. Refreshments were served to Mrs. Myles Smith, Mrs. Jack Bargas and Misses Leah Knott, Johnnie Lord, Myrtle King, Carolyn Ratliff and Mable Skinner.

The Bridge club met with Mrs. H. L. Wimberly. The guests were Mrs. Marion P. Guthrie, Mrs. Frank Owen, Mrs. James Wilkerson, Mrs. W. W. Burnside, Mrs. Edwin McDonald, Mrs. H. C. Denon, Mrs. Tait Hargrove and Mrs. Morris Kaufman.

Mrs. Willard Scott entertained at bridge the following guests: Mrs. W. W. Burnside, Mrs. Edwin McDonald, Mrs. A. E. Swanson, Mrs. Morris Kaufman, Mrs. Tait Hargrove, Mrs. James Wilkerson, Mrs. Henry Wimberly. Delicious refreshments were served.

Greta Garbo And Robert Taylor Starred In 'Camille'

Star Cast In Film At Paramount

Screen Version Of Famous Novel Rated One Of Best Pictures Of Season

GARBO in love with Robert Taylor! The most glamorous, most alluring, most talked about actress in the world in an enthralling romance with the handsome young screen star who has achieved the most phenomenal rise in popularity in the annals of Hollywood.

This is the sensational love team presented in the long-awaited Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer filmization of the celebrated Alexandre Dumas play and novel, "Camille," directed by George Cukor, who directed "Romeo and Juliet," and playing today at the Paramount theater.

The meteoric Taylor, as Armand, becomes Garbo's 17th leading man in her 11 years of stardom, while he, within two spectacular years, has climbed to the peak of popularity opposite 11 of the screen's leading stars. Others featured in a typical Garbo cast of "big names" include Lionel Barrymore, Elizabeth Allan, Jessie Ralph, Henry Daniell, Lenore Ulric and Laura Hope Crews.

Contrary to general belief, "Camille" in the screen version is not the heavy, tragic subject associated with the stage but is the vivid portrayal of one of the gayest, happiest eras in the romantic history of Paris. The screen play, the work of three of Hollywood's foremost writers, Zoe Akins, Frances Marion and James Hilton, author of "Lost Horizons," was written to capture the spirit of the Alexandre Dumas (fils) novel. Requiring six months of research and adaptation, its story of a woman who flung a fortune into disarray for an immortal love is presented in 156 scenes of which Garbo and Taylor dominate 70 per cent.

George Cukor, acclaimed for his direction of "Romeo and Juliet," "David Copperfield," "Little Women" and other famed classics transformed to the screen, has devoted his same genius for meticulous and faithful direction to the new Garbo vehicle.

With Garbo and Taylor as the respective Marguerite and Armand, other important roles are filled by Barrymore as the elder Duval, Taylor's father; Elizabeth Allan as Nichette; Jessie Ralph as Nanine; Henry Daniell as Baron de Varville; Lenore Ulric as Olympe; Laura Hope Crews as Prudence; Rex O'Malley as Gaston; Russell Hardie as Gustave and E. E. Clive as Saint Gaudens.

The magnificent settings of the period were reproduced by Cedric Gibbons, assisted by Fredric Hope and Edwin B. Willis, and were so designed as to emphasize the gaiety of the era. Thirty-eight major sets were constructed including accurate reproductions of the Theatre de Varieties as it existed in 1847, Baron de Varville's chateau, Armand's house in Paris, his father's country chateau, Nichette's home, church exteriors and interiors, a great auction salon, a famous gambling salon, gardens and Paris streets.

The wardrobe for the principals is one of the most extensive ever designed for a Garbo picture. The star herself has a change of eighteen elaborate costumes designed by Adrian. Taylor wears fourteen different suits. In addition 250 women's costumes were fashioned for other principals and character players.

Of particular interest in connection with "Camille" is the fact that it gives Garbo her greatest opportunity of revealing heretofore little known accomplishments. As Marguerite, the Lady of the Camellias, whose single glance wrecked many a love-sick youth, she dances the polka, sings a French song and plays Weber's "Invitation to the Dance" on the piano. The production is heralded as the most important picture on the current Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer calendar.

Each daily session of their 1937 state legislature will cost Wisconsin taxpayers more than $1,300.

BIRTHDAY BALL SUCCESS

BASTROP, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Receipts from the sale of tickets to the president's birthday ball, held at the V. F. W. hall here Saturday night, January 30, and from the personal greetings messages sent by wire reached a total of about $300, according to Dr. W. A. Rodgers, chairman of the birthday ball committee. This sets a new high mark for the annual celebration in Bastrop. The chairman expressed his complete satisfaction at the response made by local citizens. Dr. Rodgers highly complimented every person who served on the various committees.

VETERAN PRINTER VISITS NEWSPAPER

George F. "Brooklyn Joe" Roddy, 77-year-old itinerant printer, who has journeyed throughout the United States and worked on numerous newspapers in his 60 years as a printer, arrived here Friday from Henderson, Tex., and, after a visit to the composing room of the News-Star-World Publishing corporation, went on his way to Jackson, Miss.

"Brooklyn Joe" began his newspaper career at the age of 16 on the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and is one of the few remaining members of that colorful fraternity that once roamed the country in sizeable numbers several years ago. He has witnessed the development of printing from the old "hand-set" days to the present and recalls quite readily the coming of the linotype machine.

On July 3, 1886, the New York Tribune came out with a story of the new fangled type-setting machine," he said, "and stated that the machine would do the work of five men. But I see there are still a lot of us working."

But old Joe doesn't have to work any more, although he is "77 and still stepping." He draws a pension from the International Typographical union.

KIWANIS CLUB FORMED

COLUMBIA, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—A Kiwanis club was organized here this week with R. O. Cummings being elected president, Guy H. Alford, vice-president, and L. L. West, secretary-treasurer. Directors elected were L. C. Nunn, H. S. Bankston, Rev. V. D. Morris, H. Ted Woods, Hugh W. Seal, George Shipp and Dr. E. L. Carroll. The first luncheon meeting will be held Friday at 6:30 p. m. in the dining room of the First Baptist church. A delegation from the Rayville club will be present.

New Type Of Picture At Capitol

Glenda Farrell Tops Cast Of "Smart Blonde," Mystery-Comedy-Drama

"SMART BLONDE," introducing a new and fascinating character called Torchy Blane, girl newspaper reporter, is the Warner Bros. presentation at the Capitol theater today.

Torchy is portrayed by the fast-talking, wise-cracking and altogether likeable Glenda Farrell. This picture, the producers say, is the first of a series with Torchy Blane as the heroine. "Smart Blonde" is a fast-moving comedy-drama, based on a murder mystery which Torchy helps to solve. In the solution she has the aid of her friendly enemy, Detective Lieutenant Steve McBride of the police. Steve is played with gusto by big, husky Barton MacLane, who alternates in the movies between heroic and tough roles—and does both very well indeed. Speed and action are the vital elements of "Smart Blonde." It begins with the introduction of Torchy as she gets an interview on a mile-a-minute train; goes immediately into the killing of the man she has been interviewing; progresses into night clubs, police stations and other hot spots in a big city, and maintains until the final fade-out the suspense it starts out with.

Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane both give believable and intensely interesting performances as reporter and cop. Winifred Shaw, dark, throaty contralto, is especially attractive as a night-club singer, with a tuneful lament, "Why Do I Have to Sing a Torch Song?"

A small brunet newcomer named Jane Wyman has some delicious comedy scenes—in one of which she wakes up on a morning after to find a huge St. Bernard in her room, about which she has no recollection. David Carlyle and Charlotte Winters are effective as a pair of menacing crooks. Other important characters are ably handled by Joseph Crehan, Craig Reynolds, Addison Richards and Tom Kennedy.

Frank McDonald, youngest of Warner Bros. directors, handled the making of "Smart Blonde," which was prepared for the screen by Don Ryan and Kenneth Gamet from an original story by Frederick Nebel. Glenda Farrell's Torchy Blane stories are destined to be surefire hits.

NAMED POSTMASTER

COLUMBIA, La., Feb. 6.—(Special)—State Representative J. W. James of Columbia has received a communication from United States Representative Newt V. Mills of the fifth district, to the effect that Mrs. Chassee Davis Redditt, local high school teacher, has been appointed postmaster here.

HOME FURNISHING COST DISCUSSED FOR NEW OWNERS

Shop Heads Give Views On Amounts Needed To Equip Small House

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The subject of how much it costs to furnish a home invariably arouses diverse opinions and heated discussion, but it is always of interest to those who have had or are about to have that interesting experience.

Three representative department stores in Washington were consulted by the federal housing administration regarding this matter of moment and asked whether $500 would cover the expense of furnishing a five or six-room house.

One firm declared that a shopper with a fair knowledge of home furnishings and with careful buying, particularly during furniture sales, could purchase furniture essentials with $500.

Higher Average
The second store claimed that $750 would not only buy furniture necessities but provide a limited number of lamps, rugs and sufficient china and glassware for the initial house-keeping.

The third department store insisted that $1,000 would barely cover the absolute necessities required in home furnishings and would mean a sparse, furnished house and a very narrow choice of tables and other requirements to make a home attractive and comfortable.

While furnishings and furniture cannot be purchased under the program of the federal housing administration, a strong demand for these items is created through home construction and modernization.

Much depends upon the location of the home to be furnished, the firms with whom business is done, the selection and discrimination of the purchaser.

Wise Buying Stressed
Frequently thousands of dollars are spent on making homes or apartments attractive and the finished result is not half as effective as those on which a few hundreds have been used.

All three firms consulted stressed the importance of buying substantial, well-made pieces, even if a longer time was needed to bring the number to the requisite amount. Shoddy pieces, they explained, quickly showed signs of wear, while good woods improved with care, and well-woven rugs and curtains withstood the ravages of time and many cleanings.

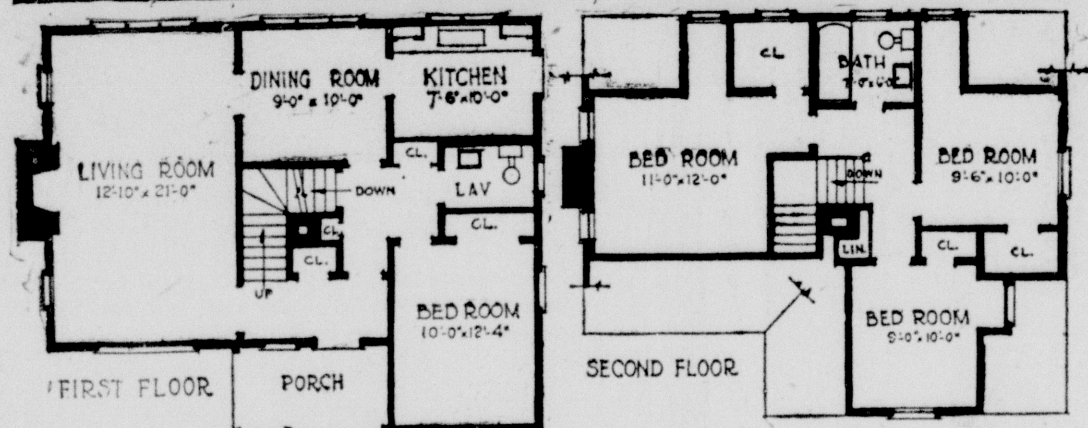

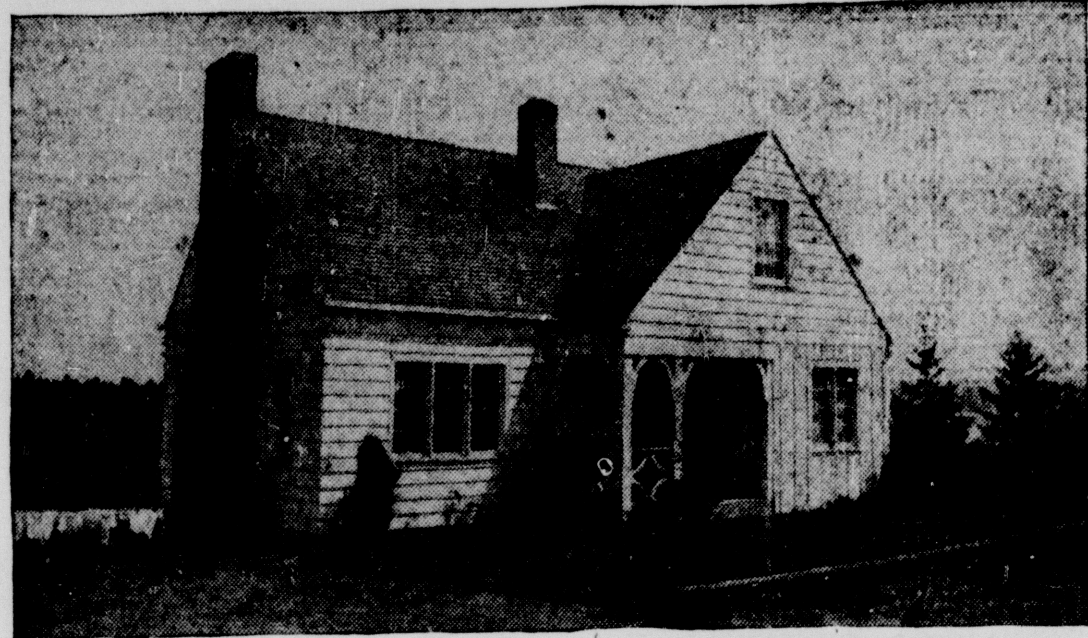

Permanent Furniture
The prospective owners of homes being purchased under the insured mortgage system of the federal housing administration plan to live in them indefinitely and have the advantage of studying their surroundings and making a decision regarding just the right piece for the right place in their homes, taking months, if necessary, to make the choice.

A few beautiful well-chosen pieces of furniture add beauty and distinction to the home, and their acquisition does not always represent large amounts of money spent but rather good taste on the part of the purchaser.

LAUNDRY ROOM MAY BE ADDED TO GARAGE

If there are no laundry trays in the house or if they are in a damp, dark spot in the cellar, a small laundry room can be built at small expense, either as a part of the garage or as an extension from the service part of the house.

Rustic Colonial

A northwestern cottage that combines colonial form and proportions with a suggestion of the rustic, is this house, built by Homes, Inc. The treatment of the porch and the use of perpendicular batters on the first floor show the pioneer origin of the design. A further departure from colonial tradition is the use of double and triple mullioned windows. The blending of these various elements, however, forms a pleasing unit, well adapted to its environment.

The plan, too, shows the influence of its colonial inspiration in the central hall and chimney. In this case, however, the central chimney is only minor. The main one rises outside the living room wall much in the Virginia style. The rest of the first floor arrangement is planned to suit the site without regard to precedent.

The number of bedrooms makes this small house suitable for a good-sized family. The location of one bedroom on the first floor makes the plan flexible, as this room may be either study or library, if desired. A good feature of the second floor is the free open hall which simplifies the handling of furniture.

This house was built in the state of Washington at a cost of $3,100, on a $500 lot. It is financed by an insured Federal Housing mortgage of $2,800, on which monthly payments amount to $21.58. This includes interest, payment on principal, and mortgage insurance.

Bathroom Equipment Can Be Replaced Under Plan Of FHA

The opportunity offered by the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration makes home owners look about with a critical eye to see how they can take advantage of its provisions in improving their houses.

In an old house that has not felt the touch of the artisan's hands for a number of years, one of the first things that will suggest itself is the bathroom. Being a room filled with equipment, it is much more noticeably dated than the ordinary rooms that are just walls, floors, and ceilings. Old bath tubs on legs, marble-topped basins supported on tarnished nickel brackets, high water-closet tanks, and daddies all speak of a trip to the scrap heap.

Having performed that act of mercy for these antiques that have served faithfully for more than their allotted span, the next thing to do is to survey the premises and decide what can and what should be done. For instance, it may not be possible to put in a tile floor, as the floor construction may not be strong enough to hold it. Of course, it may be possible to reinforce it enough to hold a tile floor, but that question should be determined by an expert. Then there is the question of pipes. Old pipes get clogged and corroded, and while the floor is up it might be well to replace them. It would be well to use a good non-corrosive type while one is at it. The walls come next in consideration. They may be tiled with real tiles if the structure warrants it, or by one or another of the numerous waterproof wallboards, either plain or scored to resemble tiling. Or they may be plastered and enameled or papered with a waterproof paper.

The matter of fixtures is relatively simple, for there are an infinite variety from which to choose. And when it is done the whole house takes on a new lease on life and seems to be keeping right up with the times.

Fountain Sales Show Need Of Modern Rooms

Total fountain sales in all kinds of stores during 1929 amounted to $609,451,000. In department stores fountain lunches 1,906, in drug stores 34,844, cigar stores 2,234, and confectionery stores 60,607, or a total of 100,311.

This large dollar return from business done in soft drinks and quick lunches in one year encourages the modernization of fountains for increased patronage, pleasant surroundings, and increased revenue.

During the past year many improvements in the way of fountain equipment and machinery have been placed on the market which save time and labor and which are eligible for purchase and installation under the terms of the federal housing program. Private financial institutions insured by the federal housing administration advance credit for modernization purposes to responsible persons.

HOME VACANCIES ON DECREASE IN 20 CITIES IN U. S.

Single Mortgage System Of FHA Aims To Stabilize Housing

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Citing a survey of residential vacancies, Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald has announced that it is the aim of the federal housing administration, through its single mortgage system, to enable private capital to furnish the credit required for sound construction needed to keep the supply of new housing in step with demand. Thus it will help protect families against acute local shortages and serve to place the home-building industry on a more stable basis.

The survey shows vacancies of 2 per cent or less for residential structures in 20 representative cities. This figure, Mr. McDonald pointed out, indicates a lack of satisfactory housing facilities and explains the rise in building permits issued during the first nine months of 1936 over corresponding periods of previous years. In 1933 a similar survey of residential vacancies showed a median percentage of 7.3 per cent. In most cities the real estate board cooperated with the postoffice in making an annual count. Some of the results in the larger cities follow:

San Diego, Calif., 2 per cent in 1936, 8.3 per cent in 1933, 8 per cent in 1934, 4.2 per cent in 1935; Indianapolis, Ind., 3 per cent in 1936, 12.1 per cent in 1932; Des Moines, Iowa, 1.7 per cent in 1936, 5.1 per cent in 1933; St. Louis, Mo., 3.7 per cent in 1936, 10.4 per cent in 1933; Utica, N. Y., 2.6 per cent in 1936, 5.6 per cent in 1932; Oklahoma City, Okla., 1.5 per cent in 1936, 9.7 per cent in 1933.

INSURE AGAINST CRACKS
To insure against small cracks in the plaster of the walls and ceilings showing up and spoiling the new paint job, the use of decorators' canvas as a base for the paint is effective.

In 1936 it is estimated the number of people playing golf regularly increased 25 per cent.

Breakfast Nook Reminiscent Of Gay Restaurant

A modern version of the breakfast nook is the dining corner, reminiscent of your favorite seat in a smart restaurant. An upholstered bench is placed at right angles along the wall, with a table in front.

PAINTED FLOWER POTS
ADD COLOR TO WINDOW

For a colorful effect at windows where you do not wish to use drapes try a series of small shelves at each side holding plants in brightly painted pots. Houses may be redecorated under the terms of the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

ADDITION OF ROOMS ACCOMMODATES FAMILY

When an extra bedroom or living room is needed, an addition may be built to a house with funds obtained from a private financial institution which operates under the terms of the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration. A room may be built over a porch, giving extra space on the second floor, or rooms may be built to replace porches.

A MESSAGE IN BLOOD

RESOLVED TO DESTROY THE LAST PLANE, TARZAN ASKED VOLUNTEERS FOR A DESPERATE STRATAGEM. "SOME OF US MAY DIE," HE WARNED; "BUT OUR CAUSE WILL LIVE AND CONQUER!"

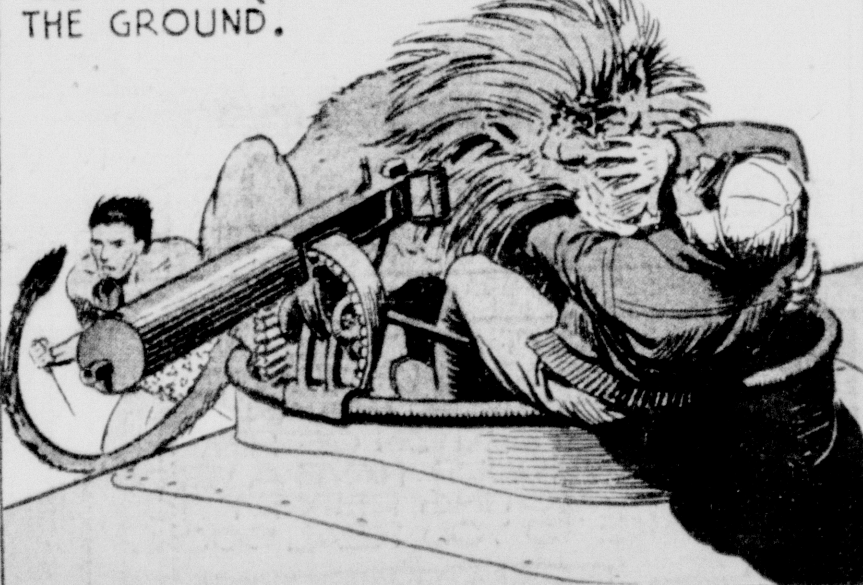

UNDER HIS DIRECTION, THE "SUICIDE SQUAD" DASHED ONTO THE FIELD AS A DECOY. THE PLANE OPENED FIRE.

MEANWHILE, TARZAN AND LETHOR WERE SLIPPING UP FROM BEHIND. THE PILOT BECAME AWARE OF THEIR APPROACH.

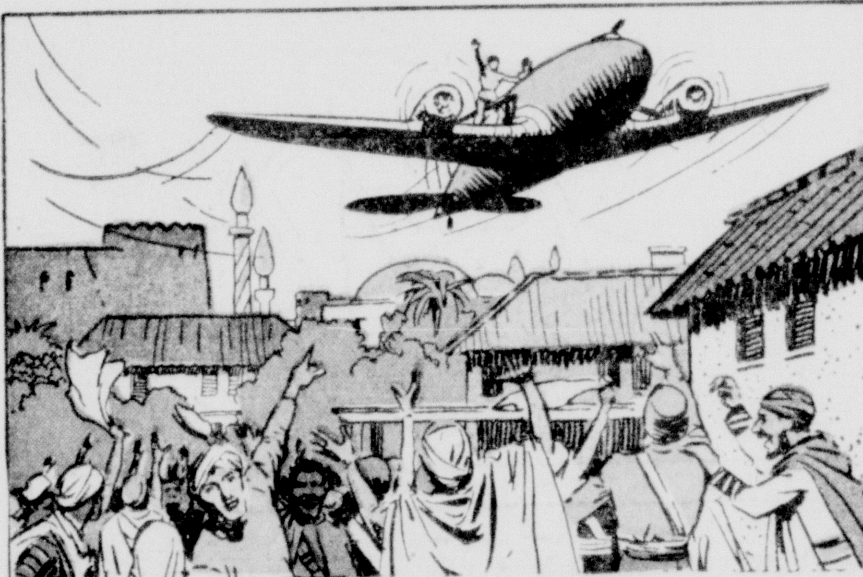

BUT JUST AS HE WAS ABOUT TO TURN HIS FIRE ON THEM, LETHOR SPRANG, AND DRAGGED HIM TO THE GROUND.

AS TARZAN LEAPED ABOARD, THE PLANE ROARED AWAY. HE CRAWLED ALONG A WING, TO FORCE THE PILOT TO LAND.

THEN ANOTHER IDEA CAME TO HIM. "FLY LOW OVER THE GOLDEN CITY," HE COMMANDED.

WHEN THEY ARRIVED, A GREAT CRY ROSE UP FROM THE OPPRESSED PEOPLE. "TARZAN! OUR HERO HAS RETURNED!"

NOW THE APE-MAN CUT A PIECE OF FABRIC FROM THE PLANE. THEN HE PRICKED HIS ARM, AND IN HIS OWN BLOOD WROTE TO FLINT.

HE DROPPED THE NOTE BEFORE FLINT'S PALACE, AND A SENTRY HURRIED IT TO THE TYRANT.

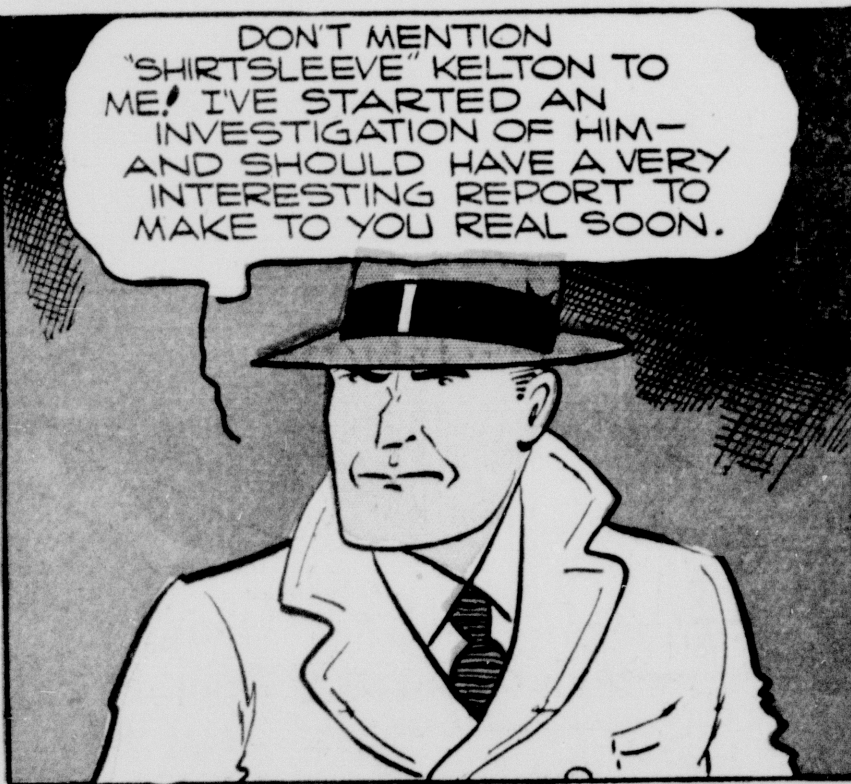

A SAVAGE GROWL BURST FROM FLINT'S ANGRY LIPS: "TARZAN MAY BE MASTER NOW--BUT NOT FOR LONG!"

ADVENTURE STAMPS
by I. S. Klein
The HEROIC DEATH OF EDITH CAVELL

GERMAN troops swept through Belgium in 1914, and left behind them in their rush toward Paris a straggling number of lost Belgian, French and English soldiers. Sympathetic civilians harbored these wandering fighters and formed a secret "underground system" by which they could get their allies to Holland and freedom.

One day two British soldiers came to Brussels' nurses' school, conducted by Edith Cavell, English nurse who had treated the wounds of both allied and German soldiers in the early days of the war. She kept the two runaways under cover for a while, and then, with a guide, sent them to the Dutch border. Others came, and soon her school was filled with soldiers and civilians on their way to the border, and back to the allied lines.

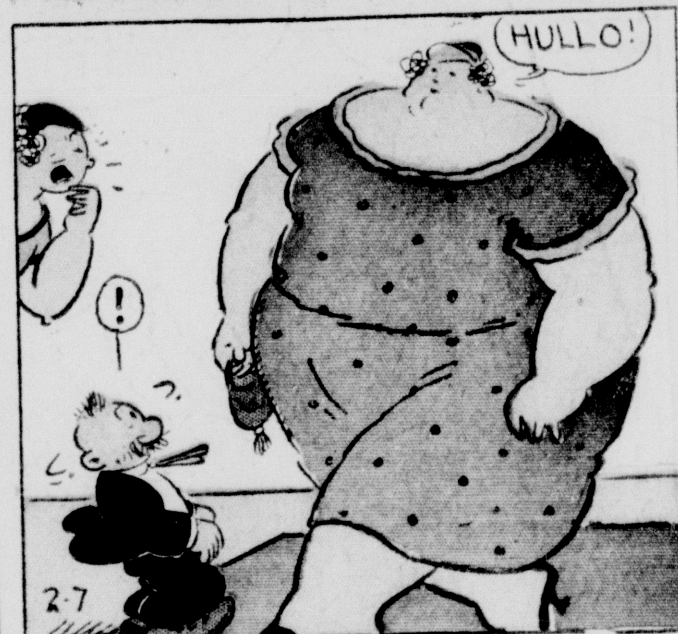

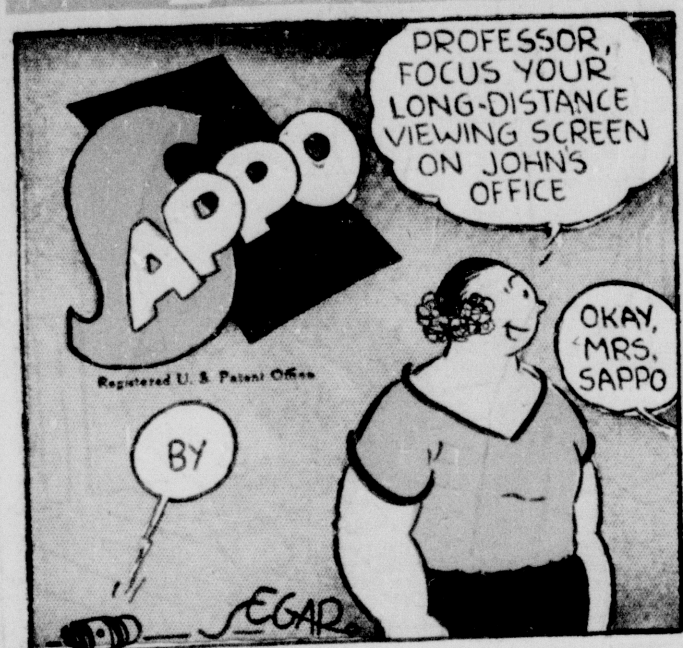

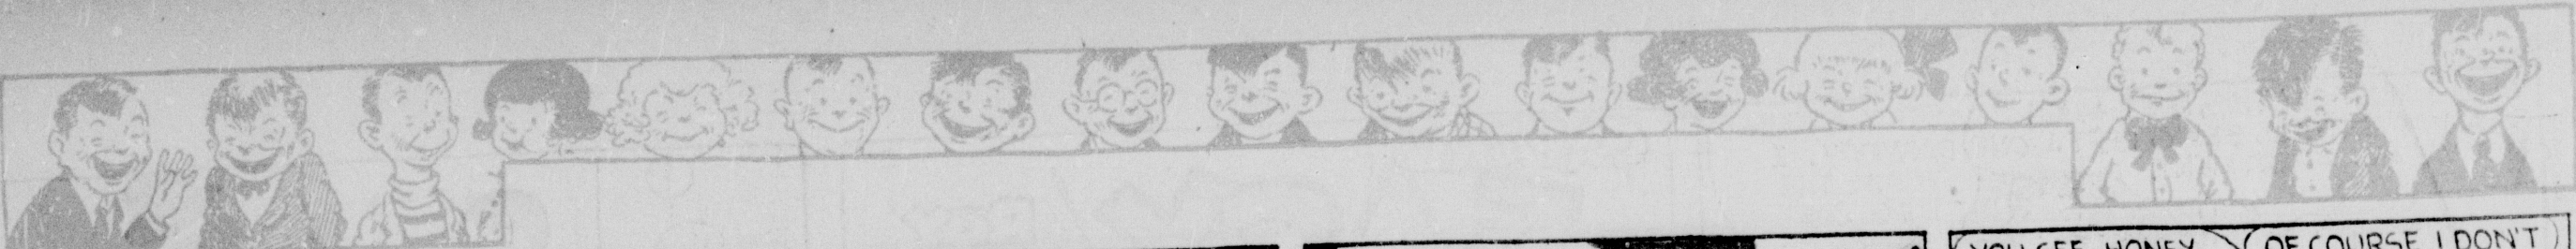

On Aug. 5, 1915, German officers arrested her and several other men and women, on the charge of harboring allied soldiers and aiding their escape. Calmly, she admitted all. She would not plead for clemency. She was sentenced to death.

Early on the morning of Oct. 12, 1915, Miss Cavell was driven from St. Gilles prison to an open rifle range. Self-possessed, she walked to a chair and sat down. Twelve soldiers lined up before her. Her eyes were covered, the order to fire was given, and Miss Cavell slumped to her death, a heroine to the last.

The $1 stamp issued by Canada in 1930 bears a picture of Mt. Edith Cavell, in the Canadian Rockies, named for this famous heroine.
